Doris saves the day for city's new play festival

By ANNE PAPINEAU

THE FESTIVAL of Firsts playwriting competition, struck from the City of Carmel budget last spring, has come under the wing of the owners of the Cypress Inn.

Doris Day and Dennis Levett, representing the inn, presented a $5,000 check to Mayor Jean Grace and Carmel Cultural Commission Chairman Roger Fremier on Monday. The Cypress Inn, located on Lincoln Street at Seventh Avenue, is co-owned by Day, Dennis and Mrs. Levett, and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Melcher, Day's son and daughter-in-law.

'I think It's a terrific thing. I've never been to a play in Carmel...but I'm going to get out and go to some.'
— Doris Day

The gift will be used to continue a competition launched by the city in 1977 to support the efforts of new playwrights. Since then, thousands of plays have been read by local judges and a dozen works named as winners. The majority of the plays had their world premieres at Sunset Theater in Carmel, and some Festival of Firsts winners continue to be staged around the country.

"I think It's a terrific thing," said Day of the festival. "I'm really a newcomer here because I live in the valley and I don't even vote in Carmel. I've never been to a play in Carmel. In fact, if I do go out at night it's usually for dinner. But I'm going to get out and go to some."

Cypress Inn co-owner Dennis Levett said he first heard of the festival through City Administrator Doug Schmitz.

"He was talking to Doris' son, Terry Melcher, and I happened to overhear," Levett noted. "Doug Schmitz said it would be nice if some conscientious Carmel citizen would step forward and support this festival. When we mentioned it to Doris, with her renowned theatrical background, she thought it would be splendid. Doug finally said, 'Are you serious?,' and we said, 'Of course.' "

Until last year, the festival was supported solely by the City of Carmel. But the city council voted last spring to conclude municipal funding and authorize the Community and Cultural Commission to solicit private support. In 1988, the Monterey County Theater Alliance, Monterey Peninsula College and the cities of both Carmel and Seaside together produced staged readings of the four finalists in both Seaside and Carmel.

"It was a disappointment to me with our budget constraints that the city couldn't fund it," noted Mayor Jean Grace. "I hated to see it cut out because I think of the festival as a kind of a unique Carmel offering. I actually went to the first Festival of Firsts play and I've gone to almost all of them since. I'm also very much a person who believes in joint public/private support of the arts."

WHEN THE Festival of Firsts was begun in the late '70s, it was designed to continue a playwrighting tradition launched here by authors early in the century.

The late Gunnar Norberg, former Carmel mayor, quoted from a 1912 issue of Sunset magazine in a Carmel Pine Cone column devoted to the Festival of Firsts.

"The Carmel idea was to serve first and foremost as an instrument for originality, for creation, for the help and encouragement of authors who aim at serious work," Sunset reported 77 years ago.

Norberg's article listed plays that had their world premieres in Carmel, including two works by Mary Austin — Fire, in 1913, and The Arrowmaker, in 1914. Sidney Howard's The Sons of Spain bowed, also in 1914, on the Forest Theater stage. Howard later received the Pulitizer Prize for his play, They Knew What They Wanted.

In 1915, a play-in-verse by Jack London, The First Poet, premiered in Carmel. In sum-

Parking proposals crowd city council's agenda; Torres property plan OK'd

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL City Council had a parking lot or parking garage to discuss for three of the four sections of the city last Tuesday night and took some action on all of the proposals.

Only the southwest section of Carmel was without a parking proposal as in succession the council:

• Voted for a mini-park and 68-space parking lot plan for its newest acquisition, the Torres Street property. Formerly called Handley property, it is located between Junipero Avenue and Torres Street and Third and Fourth avenues.

• Debated and sent on to the planning commission a controversial proposal for a joint venture between Pine Inn and the city for a two-level garage at three city-owned lots on Lincoln Street and Fifth Avenue and the adjoining Pine Inn parking lot on Monte Verde Street and Fifth Avenue.

The council directed the commission to review the project's compliance with the city's general plan.

• Accepted a $78,758 bid from Environmental Science Associates, Inc. to compile an environmental impact report on the proposed multi-level garage at the north field at Sunset Center. The EIR could be completed by August.

The city plans a public hearing on what citizens feel are the environmental issues that should be included for analysis in the EIR. That meeting will be scheduled the last week of January or first week of February.

AFTER NUMEROUS discussions and at least three meetings with the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association and other interested parties, the city staff developed a plan for the $2.4 million Torres Street property that easily won approval from the city council.

Councilmember Elinor Laiolo abstained from voting without stating her reasons. However, she has been opposed to the city's purchase of the property, which was completed Dec. 28.

The parking lot with mini-park is called an "interim solution" until the council settles on a permanent use for the site.

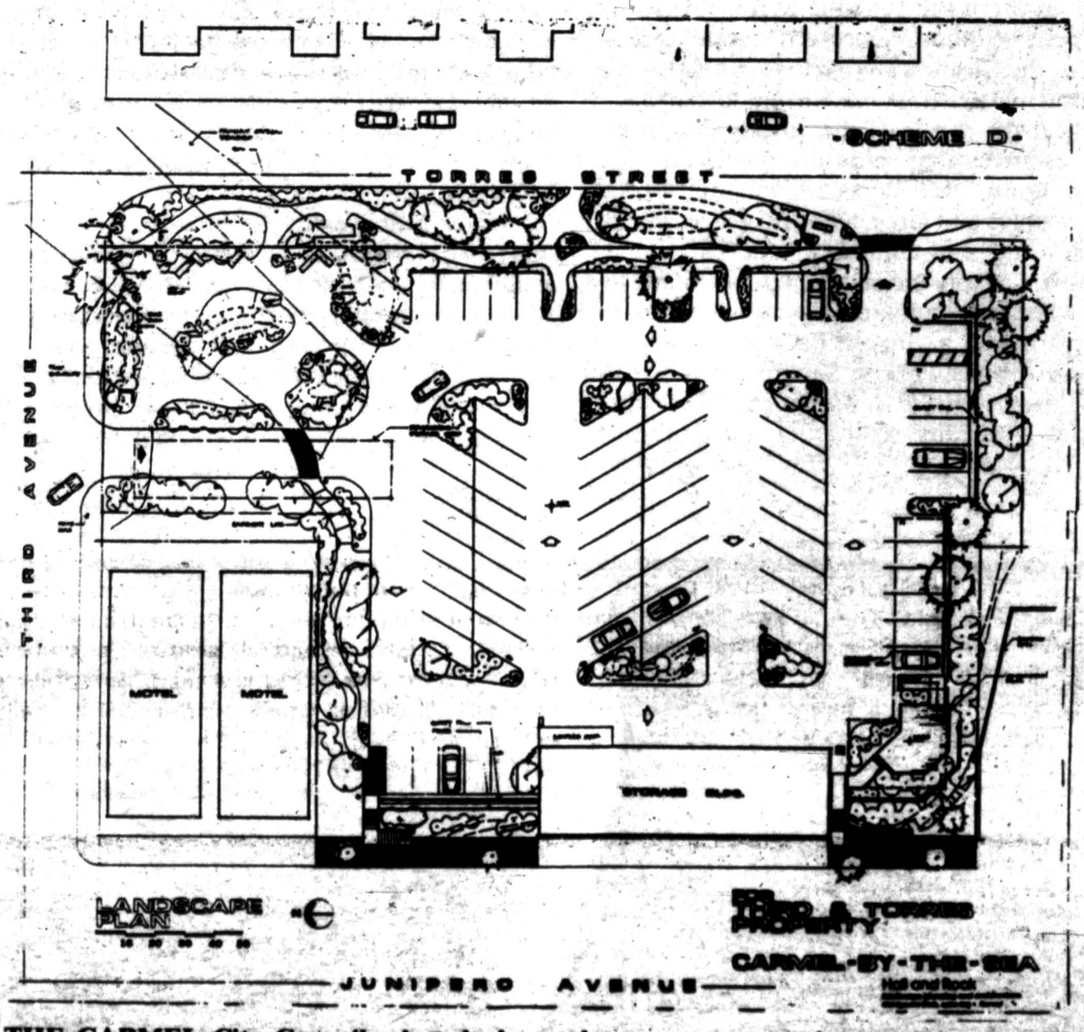
The plan shows a small park in the northeast corner of the lot which has a spectacular view of Carmel and Point Lobos.

It also extends the park into one lane of Torres Street, creating one-way traffic on the block between Third and Fourth avenues and a buffer of greenery between the houses and Torres Street and the parking lot.

The one-way street is intended to keep tourist traffic from going up and down Torres Street. The entrance to the lot is situated on Third Avenue and the exit on Torres Street.

Greg D'Ambrosio, city administrator of public services, explained that the large buildings on the northeast and along the southern end of the property will be torn down.

The council and planning commission will also consider retaining the restrooms on the property for public use.



THE CARMEL City Council selected plan "D" for its interim parking lot and mini-park layout on the city's recently acquired Torres property, formerly called the Handley property. The plan has 68 parking spaces with an entrance on Third Avenue and exit on Torres Street, which will lose one lane and become one-way going north between Third and Fourth avenues. The council has budgeted $220,000 for the construction of the lot and mini parks from the monies received through the sale of certificates to purchase the property. Economic consequences

Dear Editor:

While the City of Carmel (and the other peninsula municipalities) are engaged once again with the county board of supervisors about county help in funding local library operations, they should factor in another set of numbers to assist them in their deliberations.

If the county shuts off support and the City of Carmel cuts off current users not within the city limits, I for one would be out on Carmel Point carrying a petition seeking immediate annexation to the City of Carmel. While we have resisted inclusion for many years into a city run by a city council of questionable judgement, the current city leadership appears to make more intelligent decisions than previous ones were wont to do. And I certainly have no desire to be patronizing a "porty library" on the edge of Brinton's parking lot in lieu of usage of the Harrison building.

If the Point and the Walker Tract annexed to the city, would the resulting loss of property taxes to the county for varied services such as street, sheriff, building and other operations when coupled with less demand to provide those services make driving us out of the county sphere an ultimately sensible economic decision?

On the other side of the coin, would the increased costs to the City of Carmel to provide those same services be easily borne by the increased taxation revenue they would garner while considering the loss of the extra support now given the library system by the county? I don't know but surely someone in city and county government could estimate the economic consequences of cutting off the library support IF it resulted in losing part of the tax base to an annexation movement. Which certainly would appear.

Sanity for all

Dear Editor:

Anyone who is interested in the future of Carmel, Carmel Valley, Point Lobos and beyond ought to take a hike through the Hatton Canyon from the top at Carpenter. Do not rely on those simple Caltrans models. In order to make a pleasant rolling roadway, Caltrans will drastically cut into the mountains to fill in the valuable wetlands below.

These wetlands are protected under federal law of the Clean Water Act; yet those for the freeway chose to ignore this important fact. This canyon is one of the quickly disappearing resources that naturally regulates water flow, houses 160 acres of wildlife, 10,000 native pines and large beautiful groves of oak trees.

How can anyone, in their right mind, let this wholesale slaughter of our own backyard happen? And, as anyone knows; how well do those freeways work in San Jose or LA? All they bring is more development. Our water supply is already tight. Our air is already tainted by smog.

Sanity for all will only be achieved by leaving the canyon alone.

Have a heart

Dear Editor:

It would be advisable for dog owners not to let them loose—particularly after dark—to roam and forage garbage cans as they do mine and my neighbors, however well I fasten them down.

This time of the year there are many turkey bones etc. in the garbage which are extremely hazardous to our pets. Not only that, they leave a dreadful mess to clean up.

Have a heart and keep your animals indoors or in your yards.

A man's dream

Dear Editor

A gourmet chef, a man who loved his family, friends and travel.

Henry "Bunty" Borghesani, Jr., his parents and family have been going to Carmel for the last 40 years.

On an average of once a month, we went to Carmel to relax, shop, especially at Christmas, eat at the various restaurants. The Tuck Box was special to him for tea and scones.

I believe we stayed at every motel and hotel in Carmel these past years.

His dream was to sell our home in Martinez and start a bed and breakfast inn in Carmel. His dream was so real to him.

His last trip to Carmel was Dec. 9, 1988. We went Christmas shopping that weekend and visited very special friends in Carmel, Lloyd and Helen Praeger. He looked so forward to that weekend in Carmel with friends.

Henry Borghesani, Jr. passed away on Dec. 20, 1988 unexpectedly of a massive heart attack at the age of 57.

Carmel was so special to him. He truly loved to eat good food; shop all day, even got his hair cuts there for many years until the barber retired. He made friends of store clerks, the people in business and loved to go to the book store on Ocean Avenue.

We are left with fond, wonderful memories and unfulfilled dreams.

Carmel holds lasting memories and very special friends.

Going backward

Dear Editor:

The public is increasingly upset about the local water district to perform its principal function of providing adequate water for our area in both normal and drought conditions. It's very obvious that something has to be wrong in their approach to the problem. It appears that we have made absolutely NO PROGRESS since the district was formed in June 1978, along with the famous Prop 13.

This past few years it appears that for any step forward the water politicians seem to take not one but two steps backward in attaining the goals of the original state law that set up the district. Let's just look at what the mission of the water board said back in September 1977 from the findings of the Legislature Bill AB 1329.

"Water problems in the Monterey Peninsula area require integrated management...there is a need for conserving and augmenting supplies of water by integrated management of ground and surface water supplies, for control and conservation of storm and wastewater, and for the promotion of the reuses and reclamation of water..." (Nowhere is it spelled out that a single dam is the ONLY answer to this integrated water management.)

With their ever-increasing staff and big budget, is there any evidence that this 10 1/2 years of MPWMD water management produced even one acre foot of new or recycled water in the whole district? Is this a record any public agency could be proud of? Maybe it really is time to turn over to the private sector the task of managing both water and sewage systems. Meantime, we can be glad that bureaucratic, local political structures like the MPWMD do not operate and manage our electric and gas systems, our food distribution systems, and our gasoline delivery systems.

Time for decision: fish or cut bait?

Land of the People

Dear Editor:

American cities are unhealthy and dangerous places to live in, and they have been getting worse and worse. To change this, I would like to see a movement of people back to the land. The precious land of American belongs to the people, and not just to the federal government, the corporations and the plutocrat billionaires, who seem to believe the lie that God is money and money is God. (It says in the New Testament that God is love, not money.)

I think it is unnatural and evil that so many of our citizens are packed together like sardines in cities and ghettos. It is crazy and stupid for 90 percent of Americans to be forced to live on only 1 or 2 percent of the land, when many of these people could be out on the land caretaking it, and farming organically.

It is true that in Australia ("Down Under"), most of the people live in cities too, but there is a big difference between Australia and America. Seventy-five percent or more of Australia is desert, too dry and hot to support human life. This is not true in America, where vast tracts of land lie fallow, uncared for and mostly unproductive and uninhabited because of bureaucracy, foolish regulations and nonsensical laws, human greed, and mismanagement.

I believe the crowding together of Americans into cities and ghettos is the root cause of many of our social problems, such as a high crime and suicide rate, rampant drug addition and alcoholism. Most people seem to enjoy driving their cars all day long creating terrible traffic gridlock almost everywhere in the cities. Indeed, Americans seem to love their cars more than anything else.

When spring comes I hope that I can be up north somewhere tree-planting (something a lot of these homeless people on the streets could be doing). Maybe someone with a pick-up truck could help me out, and we could get a tree planting crew together. I'd much rather be tree planting than continutally dodging traffic and drunk drivers.

Proposed water reclamation plant near reality

By NANCY HILLS

THE PEBBLE Beach Co.'s offical bid to financially sponsor a multi-million dollar water reclamation plant at Carmel Sanitary District facility and receive water to complete buildout plans for Del Monte Forest could be no more than two months away.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District board's unanimous vote Monday night gave first approval to an ordinance which outlines the financing scheme for a proposed reclamation plant and starts the countdown for potential sponsors to make a bid.

The vote was taken over the objections of 5th District Supervisor and water board director Karin Strasser Kauffman and Brian Roseth, representing the city of Carmel.

A draft environmental impact report on the plant, commissioned by the Carmel Sanitary District, should be available for public comment later this month.

The company plans to use the water made available through the plant to complete its buildout plans for Del Monte Forest. The buildout will be spread out over a period of years.

"As I understand it, there is another public hearing (in 30 days), and then another 30-day wait," Judith Brown, consultant to the Pebble Beach Co. on the project told The Carmel Pine Cone the day after the meeting.

As soon as the waiting period is over, the company plans to file its application, she said.

"I'm not aware of anybody else out there right now that plans to bid," she said.

The company intends to offer 100 percent of the financing required to build and maintain the plant, estimated to cost about $700,000 a year for construction and operation.

About one-half of that cost will be paid for by the sale of the reclaimed water to Pebble Beach golf courses; eventually the sale of the water is expected to pay for entire amount.

Water district general manager Bruce Buel said that he has had one other inquiry from an owner of 20 lots in Del Monte Forest, the Braun Trust and McCumber property.

Buel said that the district will look for a sponsor that will offer the most in financing and demand the least amount of water in return.

The proposed plant will release about 800 acre feet of drinkable water from use on Pebble Beach golf courses, which is about 4 percent of the current total water consumption within California-American Water Co.'s service area.

The golf courses use about that much potable water a year for irrigation, but once the reclamation plant is built, they will use reclaimed water instead.

In exchange for sponsoring the project, the financial backer can receive an entitlement of up to 400 acre feet of the drinkable water now used on the golf courses.

Brown said the company will ask for about 380 acre feet of the 400, enough to serve 900 new residential units.

She added that the company will apply to the county for 359 units later in the year. The company will will not apply for any more for about five years.

The remaining 420 acre feet of water will either by allocated to peninsula cities and Monterey County or kept in the drought reserve.

"I hope that this water will stay in the ground in the drought reserve," Director Dick Heuer said.

"I hear you," Chairman Nick Lombardo responded.

THE WATER board took the unanimous action over the objections of the city of Carmel and absent 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, who spoke through water district manager Bruce Buel. Strasser Kauffman was absent because she is recovering from a serious accident that occurred in December.

The city and Strasser Kauffman stated they firmly support the concept of water reclamation but object to the provisions of this particular ordinance.

They primarily object to the guarantee of water for development for the financial sponsor.

"When we put up water to private bidders, is this careful management of a public resource?" Stasser Kauffman said to The Pine Cone before the meeting. "This is hopefully not the only water reclamation plant project we will have on the peninsula. It is very important that it be done correctly or we will have water wars when it goes to the highest bidder."

The letter from Mayor Jean Grace on behalf of the Carmel City Council stated the problem "very well," Strasser Kauffman said.

"The ordinance was written to provide a process that gives the appearance of fairness in selecting one or more fiscal sponsors for the reclamation plant. By its terms, however, the ordinance favors private sponsorship and would make municipal participation impractical," the letter states.

"As a resource management agency with the responsiblity for stewardship of a public resource, the water district should not be auctioning a permanent, vested interest in this resource to private bidders," it continues.

Carmel associate planner Roseth told the board that the city would approve of private sponsorship if the sponsor only received the reclaimed water, which cannot be used in homes or businesses, and not an entitlement for potable (drinkable) water.

Buel told the board that reclaimed water is $1,600 an acre foot, significantly more expensive than water from the proposed New San Clemente Dam and more than the district has designated as its allowable per-acre-foot-cost cutoff point, $1,000.

He also told the board that Pebble Beach Co. was not interested in financing for reclaimed water only.

Water would have to be piped under the streets of Carmel, but that was not seen as an obstacle by the city.

Strasser Kauffman had suggested that the district investigate money available through the Clean Water Act approved by California voters in November, but Buel stated he believed that was still fiscally unrealistic. The monies available through the state are loans, not grants, and must be paid back.

"The board indicated that the community should not be asked to pay for this project. It does not meet cost-effective criteria," Buel said.

Since the balance of the water not used by the fiscal sponsor will either be returned to the drought reserve or reallocated among the cities and Monterey County, Buel said he views the sponsor as "performing a service by funding a new source of supply. It could help both the environment and growth needs at the same time."

'When we put up water to private bidders, is this careful management of a public resource? This is hopefully not the only water reclamation plant project we will have on the peninsula. It is very important that it be done correctly or we will have water wars when it goes to the highest bidder.'

It was the Pebble Beach Co.'s initial interest and continual negotiating that helped to bring a reclamation project back into the realm of possibility.

Over the span of at least 10 years, both the Carmel Sanitary District and Pebble Beach Community Services District have attempted to bring their own reclamation projects to fruition. However, politics, interagency rivalry and financing eventually put the CSD project on the shelf and killed the PBCSD plant plans.

Drive for Carmel schools parcel tax begins in earnest

By DAVID LELAND

CITIZENS FOR Carmel Schools has begun in earnest its drive to create a parcel tax during a Special Tax Election on March 7.

If adopted, the parcel tax would levy a charge of $80 a year for four years on each of the 11,000 property owners within the Carmel Unified School District.

With the CUSD desperately in need of capital improvements, the parcel tax can be seen as a do-or-die effort to raise adequate funds for the work.

"If it doesn't pass, the district will be faced with a financial crisis that would be next to impossible to overcome," said CUSD Supt. Bob Infelise, who added that the committee, not the district, is in charge of promoting the parcel tax.

CUSD officials cite asbestos abatement, replacement of school buses, roof replacement and repair, replacement of fire alarms, refurbishment of restrooms and partial replacement of water and gas lines, as priorities if the tax is adopted.

State law forbids any funds raised from such a tax to be used for employee salary or operational costs.

The district's current condition, according to Vance Baldwin, assistant superintendent, has come as the direct result of lessened state involvement in local affairs.

Three acts in particular are the culprits, he said.

These include:

• The Serrano-Priest Decision of 1976, in which the state Supreme Court equalized the amount of money spent per child for education throughout the state.

For CUSD, this resulted in less funds.

• Proposition 13 in 1978 served to magnify school-funding problems when it put a cap on the maximum tax on real property.

That forced the district to operate on a "revenue-limit" formula that reduced funding for programs and facility/maintenance needs.

• Inflation and mandated programs allowed by the state have not kept pace with the cost of supplies and materials.

Additionally, state and federal legislation has mandated services that the district must provide. Not all of those programs are fully funded.

"The school district is now at a point that capital needs can no longer be deferred," Baldwin said.

BALDWIN ALSO pointed out that revenue from the state lottery falls short of helping the district institute capital improvements.

During the 1987-88 school year, CUSD received $222,786 from lottery proceeds, or only about 2.4 percent of the district's budget.

'The lottery money is welcomed, but it isn't enough and it isn't dependable. It is not a significant factor in the total income of the district nor will it fulfill the facility and grounds needs even if the total amount is used for that purpose.'

— Vance Baldwin
— CUSD administrator

Moreover, the intent of the lottery initiative was to provide funding to augment instructional programs, such as new equipment and establishing programs, not site improvement.

CUSD also uses lottery money to provide for staff training to keep up to date with their instructional skills.

"The lottery money is welcomed, but it isn't enough and it isn't dependable," Baldwin said. "It is not a significant factor in the total income of the district nor will it fulfill the facility and grounds needs even if the total amount is used for that purpose."

Even though district officials are able to provide a detailed list of needs, there is much work remaining between now and March 7.

In order for the parcel tax to pass, it must be approved by two-thirds of the registered voters. If there is a 30 percent turnout, about 3,300 voters will need to vote "yes."

A group of volunteers, composed mainly of members of parent groups in each of the district's schools, is currently poring over voter registration lists in an effort to identify parents.

Parents not registered to vote will be contacted and asked to do so.

On election day, those voting "yes" on the parcel tax will be called and reminded to go to the polls.

In addition, Citizens for Carmel Schools will secure mail-in ballots for those unable to travel to the polls, or those who will be out of the area.

If needed, transportation will also be provided to and from the polls.

Extra effort will be needed on behalf of the voters because the parcel tax is the only item on the ballot.

It is unclear whether this will work for or against those favoring the parcel tax.

"Political pundits will give you a mixed reaction," said Infelise, referring to the one-item ballot. "Most say it's better to do it this way, but some say it's better to combine it with other items."

Infelise added that he is confident that voters will make the right decision.

"I feel confident that if we can get to the people on a one-to-one basis, they will make the right decision," he said.

Carmel Beach site of multi-agency rescue drill

THE CITY of Carmel will be hosting a beach rescue drill at Carmel Beach this Saturday.

Carmel's fire, police and public works departments will be the lead agencies in this drill, which is expected to draw on the resources of several peninsula rescue and enforcement agencies. The drill is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 14 at the foot of Eighth Avenue at Carmel Beach.

"This is to test the Incident Command System that was instituted countywide after the Pebble Beach fire (in May 1987)," said Art Black, Carmel Fire Department fire prevention specialist. "It's a test of interagency cooperation and an actual drill to test readiness for all these agencies. Even though every one knows it's a drill, it'll be played out like the real thing."

Agencies involved include the three city agencies, U.S. Coast Guard, Pacific Grove Marine Rescue team, MAST, Monterey County Sheriff's Department, State Parks Department, California Department of Forestry, Peninsula Medics, and County Communications Department.

The drill, expected to take three to four hours, will involve a "diving school" in Carmel Bay that runs into problems, with multiple casualties resulting.

The last time a drill of this magnitude was conducted was in 1985 at Monastery Beach, with Carmel Highlands Fire Department the lead agency.

"The city is the lead agency this time because the drill's on our beach," said Black. "The Carmel Police Department, while they won't play a role in the actual rescue, will be a major role player." The police will have to secure the area and provide traffic control during the entire drill. The fire department will have "overall command of the incident," said Black.

The public is invited to watch the event; areas will be set aside for spectators.

For more information contact the Carmel Fire Department at 624-1718.

Reading water meters can be a simple matter

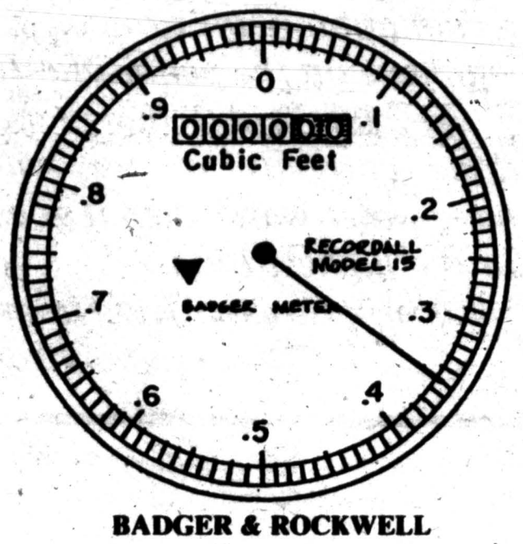
All CALIFORNIA-AMERICAN Water Co. meters register in cubic feet, so reading them becomes a simple matter of subtraction and multiplication.

—You will probably find your meter in front of your house. It will always be in the ground, surrounded by a concrete or plastic box and covered with a concrete or plastic lid. Always replace the lid, for your safety and the safety of others.

—If you cannot locate your meter, call our service department to get assistance.

—After removing the concrete or plastic lid, flip up the metal or plastic cap to determine what kind of register you have.

If it looks like this or this



BADGER & ROCKWELL

KENT

Then it is a straight reader. Simply read straight across and record the figures you see at about the same time each day. When you have two readings (for example, one from 5:00 p.m. on Monday and a second from 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday), subtract the earlier reading from the most recent reading to determine your use in cubic feet. To determine your use in gallons, multiply the remainder by 7.48.

If your meter register looks like this

it only looks hard to read. It's really very simple.

Start reading with the dial in the upper left "corner". Counting that dial you will read five dials clockwise to the dial marked "10". If the dials are seen as grouped around the face of a clock, start with the dial in the 10 o'clock position and read clockwise to the dial in the 6 o'clock position.

The indicators within each smaller dial may turn clockwise or counterclockwise. Be sure to determine which way each dial registers because:

If the pointer is between two numbers, record the lesser of the two.

If the pointer is between the 0 and the 1, record 0. If it is between the 9 and the 0, record 9.

Even if the pointer appears to be "almost" on the higher number, it is still recorded as the lower number.

If you are not sure if you should record the higher number, check the next dial down. (For example, to check the 100 dial, look at the 10 dial.) If the next dial down shows an 8 or 9, record the lesser number. If the next dial shows a 1 or is between the 0 and 1, record the higher number.

Read your meter at about the same time each day. When you have two readings to compare, subtract the first reading from the second, and multiply the remainder by 7.48 to determine gallons used.

On any meter, if there is condensation on the underside of the glass, gently tap the side of the meter to make it fall. If this does not work, try reading the meter at a different time of day. Under no circumstances should you break the seal and clean the glass yourself. Call our service department for assistance.

Once you know how to read your meter, it is easy to learn how to

CHECK FOR LEAKS

—First, make sure no water is running anywhere in the house. Check all faucets and turn off your automatic ice-maker.

—Go to your meter and record your reading, including the dial or sweep hand which indicates fractional cubic feet.

—If your meter has a sweep hand, note its reading (Rockwell & Badger meters).

—If you have a straight-reader with a red figure on the right side of the register and no sweep hand, record the red character with the rest of the reading (Kent meter). The red figure represents .10 of a cubic foot.

—If you have a meter with a dial marked "one foot" with no numbers on its face, note that indicator's location (Neptune meter).

—The Badger meter has a small red triangle, which will turn and indicate even the slightest leakage.

—Now, go have a cup of coffee or take a nap. Use no water. Wait at least 30 minutes, then take a new meter reading.

If any of the pointers have moved, you have a leak!

The most common culprit is the toilet. Turn your toilet(s) off at the base of the tank, take a meter reading and wait 30 minutes. Take a new reading. If the dials have not moved this time, you've discovered your water thief and should have your toilet(s) repaired immediately. You may be able to do this yourself.

If after you turned the toilet(s) off the dials continue to move, there is a leak somewhere else. Turn the water off to the house at the emergency shut-off probably found near your home, usually in a direct line from the meter to the house. Take a reading, wait 30 minutes and take a new reading.

If the dials have moved, there is a leak between the meter and your home. Repairs to that line are your responsiblity. If the dials have not moved, there is a leak somewhere in your home and you may need professional assistance to find it.

ALWAYS REPLACE THE CONCRETE COVER
EVEN IF YOU'LL "ONLY BE GONE A MINUTE"

Doris Day saves Carmel's Festival of Firsts event

mer 1941, Dame Judith Anderson played the starring role in the world premiere of Robinson Jeffers' Tower Beyond Tragedy, at the Forest Theater. In the same decade she took the drama to Broadway.

Anderson served as one of the final judges at both the first and second Festival of Firsts competitions. The first winner, Scenes and Revelations, was selected from 194 plays submitted. Written by Elan Garonzik, it was staged in Carmel and went on the win the Audrey Wood award in New York City. It was produced at the Circle in the Square there, as well as around the country. Scenes and Revelations is now published in the Samuel French Book of Plays.

Festival of Firsts winners receive $2,000, and in several cases have journeyed to Carmel to see the premiere staging of their play. Admission has been free to these productions, which employ local actors and production crews. Some years however, due to budget restraints, the winning play was not produced.

Last year, a staged reading was presented of each of the four finalist plays. This collaborative effort of the cities of Carmel, Seaside, Monterey Peninsula College and the Monterey County Theater Alliance, permitted two readings in Carmel and two in Seaside.

Plays continue to be submitted to the Festival of Firsts, but its future remains uncertain.

According to City Administrator Schmitz, the commitment from the Cypress Inn is "for this year only."

"We have to consider that this is an ongoing thing. We have to come up with production funding for the future," noted Roger Fremier. "I think there are only four comparable play competitions in the United States."

City's new fire truck

COMMERCIAL PLANS for the Odello project called "Coast Ranch" remain the same, despite the 162-unit senior complex being scrapped. Current plans call for 76 single-family dwellings plus 14 moderate-income homes as part of the development located east of Highway 1 just south of the Carmel River.

Odellos drop senior housing in changes to Coast Ranch

By DAVID LELAND

UNDER A new application filed with the Monterey County Planning Department, the Odello family has scaled down the density of its proposed "Coast Ranch" by more than half.

Most recently, the project called for a 162-unit senior housing area and commercial complex, but plans now call for 76 single-family dwellings, with the commercial area staying unchanged. In addition, there will be 14 units of moderate-income housing on the land.

The current application is the latest of many filed for the 134-acre parcel, located on the east side of Highway 1 near the mouth of the Carmel River, since the late 1950s. At that time the project called for 1,844 units.

Coast Ranch consultant Denise Duffy told The Pine Cone that the Odello family believes that, by scaling down the breadth of the project, it will be processed faster by the county.

"We'll work with them as fast as possible, but we've got to know which application they are working on," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman. "I anticipate that we will have a good project and good cooperation."

Prior to limiting the project, the Odellos had planned to phase the construction of the senior complex before the commercial area, but now the the family desires to build out the project all at once, according to county planner Kelly Morgantini.

Plans for the commercial area include a restaurant, farmer's market and six units of employee housing.

By nature of reduced density, Duffy said the new plans will initiate reduced wastewater and water usage on the land.

Traffic levels generated from the project spilling onto Highway 1, however, will rise from 430 trips daily with the senior housing to 760 trips with the single-family housing.

Duffy said the Odello family will still cooperate with the county flood control project in allowing part of the land to channel water away from Mission Fields and The Crossroads.

The county is currently concluding a $180,000 two-year study, which will come up with the necessary engineering recommendations for flood channeling the Carmel River.

The study already directs the Odellos to lower the levee on the north end of their land by 1 foot to let water drain onto the artichoke fields in case of a flood.

With the reduced density, it is unclear who will pick up the tab for the flood control project. The levee reduction alone is estimated to cost as high as $100,000.

Several years ago, the state Coastal Commission allowed the Odellos to increase their density in exchange for financing a flood control project on their land. Now the county may have to foot the bill.

Strasser Kauffman assured The Pine Cone that who pays for the project is irrelevant.

"The county will do a flood control at that location," she said. "We will require them to cooperate with us."

Currently the county is completing its 30-day review for the project and is readying itself to complete the amended environmental impact report.

Once the amended EIR is completed, there will be a 45-day circulation period for public comment before the application is heard by the county subdivision committee. That will be followed by a hearing by the county planning commission.

Carmel police detective completes FBI Academy

By DAVID LELAND

THE CARMEL Police Department now has the advantage of the FBI's latest management techniques — thanks to the expertise of Lt. Jon Bowman.

Last month Bowman was graduated from the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Va., after completing three months of study.

"It (the schooling) helps me be a better manager," says Bowman, a nine-year veteran with the Carmel Police Department. "And I bring the knowledge back to help the city and department."

Indeed, the city was instrumental in supporting Bowman's stint at the FBI school.

"The real benefit of the entire program is structured so the student who attends comes back to their department with a better understanding of administrational needs," explains Jack McGilvray, police chief.

The prestigious school accepts students of departments worldwide, with 203 law officers in Bowman's class. It took Bowman four years after applying to get accepted to the school.

Forty-eight states (with the exception of North and South Dakota), were represented last fall, as well as countries from as far away as Africa, Europe and South America.

Bowman, a 25-year veteran of police work, adds that only 2 percent of all of the nation's law enforcement officers have attended the school, held on the U.S. Marine Corps base in Quantico.

McGilvray points out that the FBI picked up expenses, including transportation and lodging, while the department paid for uniforms, books and Bowman's salary.

Becoming part of an elite segment of the nation's law enforcement officers could also benefit Bowman's future plans.

"One advantage (to the school), is the fact that many cities looking for a police chief are looking for people who have attended the national (FBI) academy," says McGilvray. "They know the three-month program enhances their management style."

The chief adds that the department has a two-year commitment with Bowman to stay with Carmel police.

After completing his studies, Bowman received 15 units of college credit from the University of Virginia.

Classes at the FBI school included subjects such as budgeting, stress management, constitutional law, public speaking, creative writing and physical fitness.

As head of the department's patrol, parking and animal control divisions, Bowman says he plans to use his newly found knowledge in day-to-day activities.

"I can help officers with their daily problems," he says, referring to his prowess in stress management. "I (now) have a different perspective of police work."

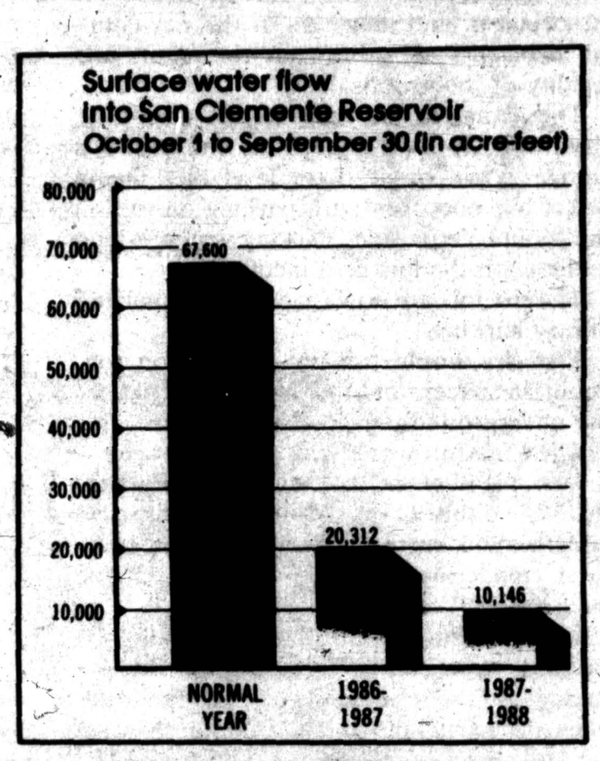
Water Rationing is in Effect

The Monterey Peninsula may be entering a third consecutive drought year. Even with recent storms, rainfall for the past two years has been 54% of normal. More importantly, stream flow into San Clemente Reservoir has only been 16% of normal. This is graphically shown below. Total water storage is 50% of capacity. There is just not enough water to avoid serious shortages in 1989 unless we cut back our water use now!

WHEN:

Rationing began January 1, 1989. When rationing will end depends upon the weather. If rains are heavy this winter and reservoirs are filled, rationing could end early in 1989. However, if reservoirs are not filled, more stringent cutbacks may be needed.



WHO:

All commercial, industrial, residential users and Federal, state, and local government agencies.

WHAT:

What is required? Everyone save 20% of their last year's use. An alternate method is available under a per capita standard — see "HOW" explanation below. Check your water bill for your past year's water use. Multiply this amount by .80 to determine your rationed amount for each billing period.

20%

HOW: PHASE III WATER RATIONING PROGRAM

STEP 1: ALL RESIDENTIAL AND COMMERCIAL USERS
Reduce water use by 20% or more over the same period in the base year (October 1, 1987 to September 30, 1988)

STEP 2: OR RESIDENTIAL USERS SHALL
Reduce (or maintain) your water use to an amount equal to or less than the following "per capita" standards:

Type of Dwelling	Number of Residents
	One	Two or More
Apartment/ Condominium/Townhouse	68 gallons per day	46 gallons per person per day
House (single family; detached)	122 gallons per day	82 gallons per person per day

Businesses may apply for a baseline such that they can use up to 80% of the regional average water use for similar types of commercial establishments.

Council's agenda packed with parking lot plans

Another building along Junipero will remain and the city will use it for storage.

The council has budgeted $220,000 for the site changes from the sale of certificates to buy the land.

The plan will go before the planning commission for design review.

"We want to express our appreciation for the quality of communication" on this project, Northeast Neighbors Association president Gordon Miller said in complimenting the staff and members of the city council.

ON THE other hand, the return of the Pine Inn/city garage proposal set a different tone to the proceedings.

Members of the audience, including representatives of the Carmel Residents Association, and members of the city council, debated each other over the merits and legality of the proposal.

The garage would combine the use of the city-owned lots with the Pine Inn lots. The garage would be at street level on Lincoln Street but one story with parking on top on the Monte Verde side. Parking would extend underneath the lots on Lincoln Street.

The city lots are now used for informal and library parking.

The city would use the parking on top, about 38 spaces, and the Pine Inn would use the underground parking, about 49 spaces.

The Pine Inn would pay for the project.

One member of the audience, Barbara Brooks, dubbed the Monte Verde Street underground entrance depicted in architectural renderings as the "Monte Verde mausoleum."

Councilmember Jim Wright maintained his opposition to the plan, stating that the garage is in the residential zone and therefore against the general plan and is inappropriate.

"My objections have less to do with the design. I have not and still cannot understand what the city council would amend the general plan to allow a second level of parking in the R-1 zone as in this project," he said.

Both contractor and parking committeee chairman Alan Williams and Mayor Jean Grace defended the project, with Grace stating that the city tried to sell those lots "so two residential houses could be built on them" but the public had rejected it.

"Now you won't let us do anything with them," she said.

Grace had also signed a petition against the project in 1987, but stated that she signed the petition because the first plans were totally unacceptable and the petition included the investigation of nine parking sites in the R-1 zone. The new proposal is more acceptable, she said.

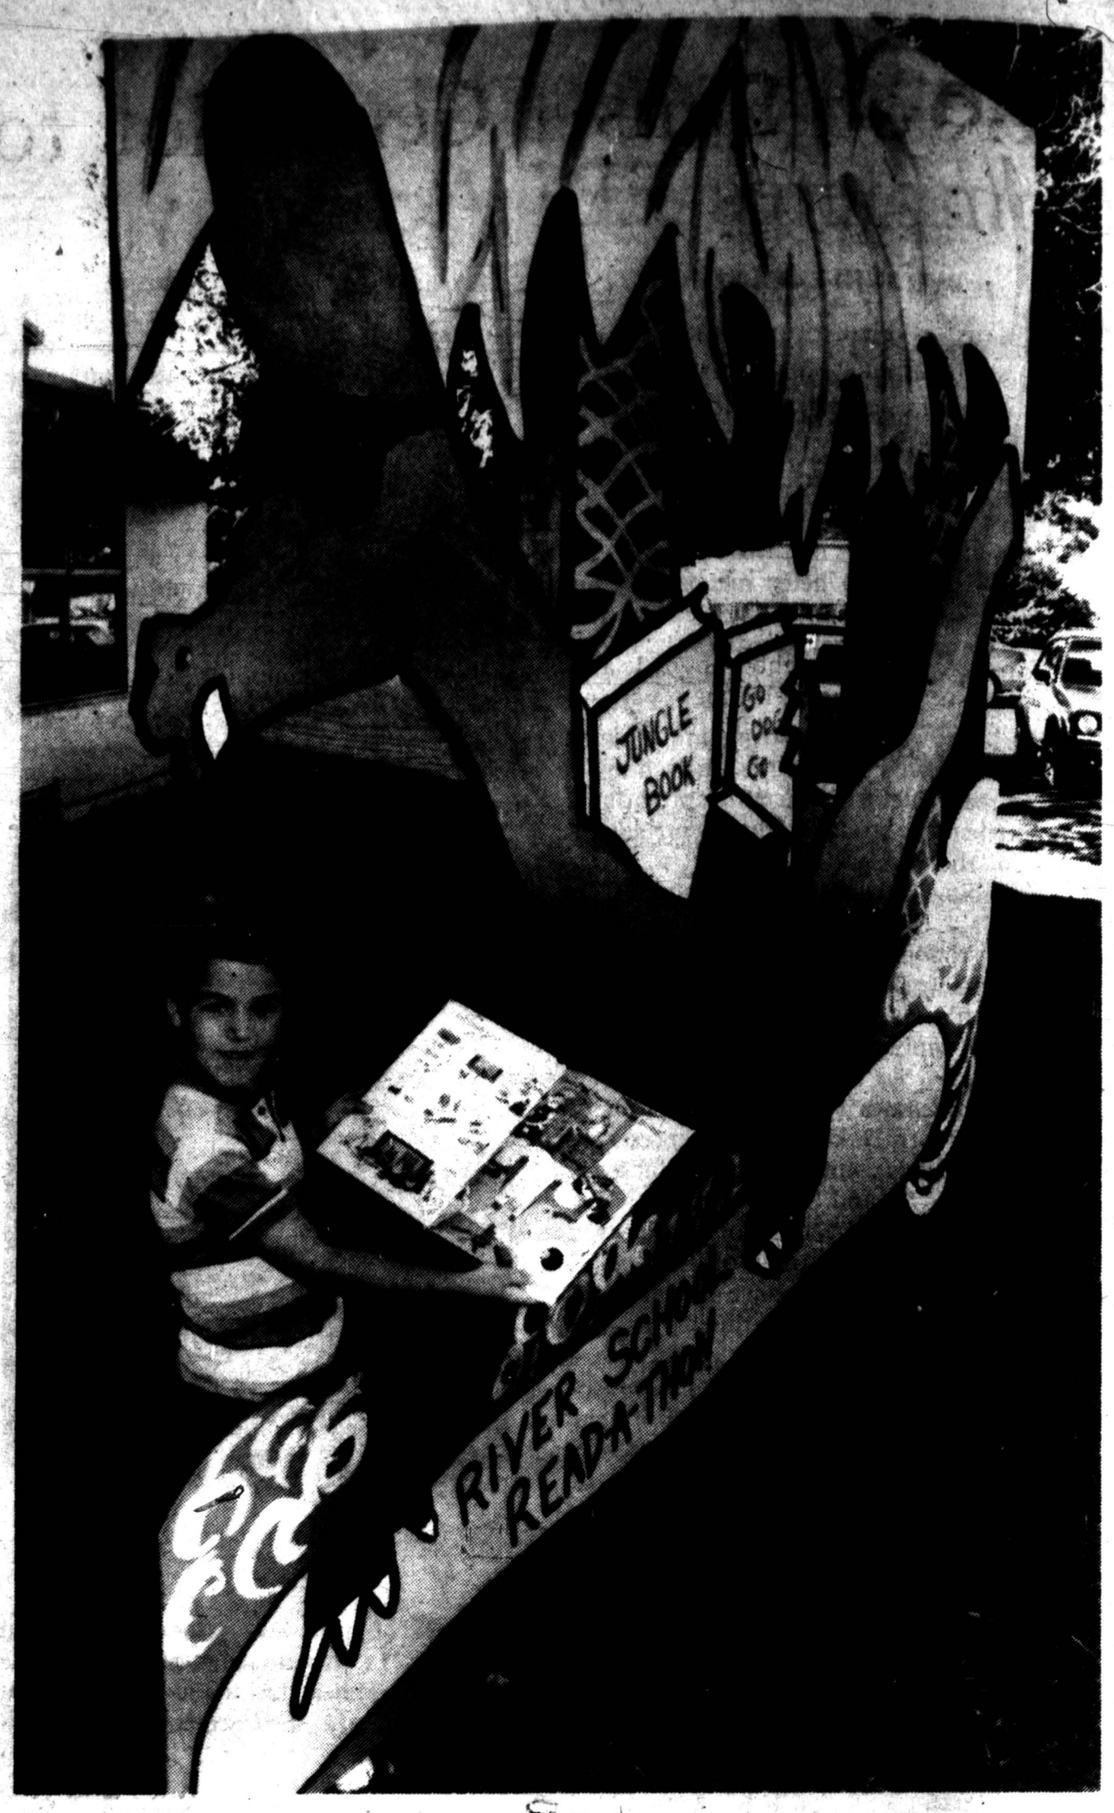
Williams, who formerly represented the Pine Inn on the project, told the council he no longer represented the hotel and would not "as long as I'm chairman" of the parking committee. He said that the process for the project would provide the parking committee with good information.

Resident Jane Mayer suggested that the lots may be used for senior citizen housing with a city garage underneath, but a joint venture with the Pine Inn would preclude any future projects of that sort. The city would be locked into the garage.

Councilmember Bob Fischer said "no way" did he consider the proposed garage's location as residential despite its technical zoning, but he was neither for or against the project as yet.

"I'd like to look at it a great deal more and not be ruled by emotion," Fischer said, adding that the original design was "horrendous."

CRA president Francis Lloyd told the council that more public input was needed on an issue of this significance and requested that they hold more public hearings on the project.



Literate dinosaur

BRENT FOGG, 5, poses with Dino-Mite, the literate dinosaur, in front of Carmel River School to kick off the school PTA's only fund-raiser of the year, a Read-A-Thon open to all students from kindergarten through fifth-grade. Each participant will seek sponsors from among his or her friends, relatives and neighbors to pledge either flat donations of specific sums for each page or book read by the student. Dino-Mite will keep track of all the pages and books read by the students. All monies raised by the event will support the school's enrichment programs and its library. In conjunction with the event the school held two Bargain Book Sales, with books going for only 25 cents each. Ginny Fogg, Brent's mom, is the school's Read-A-Thon coordinator. EIR on Sunset Center lot to be released Jan. 17

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Department plans to release on Tuesday, Jan. 17 its environmental impact report on the paving of the north field at Sunset Center.

The draft EIR, the city staff, discusses possible changes engendered by transforming what is now an unofficial free-for-all parking site into an organized pay-for-parking lot.

The report includes an analysis of the aesthetics of the project and any changes in traffic patterns in the neighborhood. It also reviews instituting a residential parking sticker program so only residents can park on the streets near Sunset Center.

The proposal to pave the lot has stirred up a hornets' nest between advocates of a multi-level garage on the site and those less enthusiastic about the proposed structure.

Those in favor of paving the lot and instituting a pay-for-parking plan argue that the lot will prove a good test for charging a fee for parking in Carmel.

"This lot won't be irreversible, but the parking garage, that would be irreversible," Councilmember James Wright stated during the Dec. 6 city council meeting when the council authorized a two-year agreement with Pansini Corp. to pave and manage the lot.

According to the agreement, Pansini guarantees a minimum of $2,000 a month to the city or 22 percent of the gross receipts, whichever is greater. Evening Sunset Center performances will offer free parking.

After the council's decision, the Carmel Planning Commission determined that the project needs an environmental impact report.

Those who oppose the project claim that it will slow down work on the garage and create havoc in the surrounding neighborhood when people who now park in the lot free start looking for parking on the streets.

Paving, striping and landscaping the lot will provide about 130 to 135 spaces, with half on monthly permits and half set aside for hourly parking.

The pay lot will charge about $30 a month for all-day parking and $1.50 an hour for short-term use.

The jumbled parking on the dirt lot now yields about 140 to 150 spaces. At times, those who park there take their chances on being able to get out because other cars may block their exit.

Alan Williams, chairman of the city's parking committee, in a letter to council on Dec. 6, opposed the paving of the lot.

The letter stated that the committee "understands the desire to clean up the Sunset Center parking lot and (get) the proposed revenues, but we feel the day parking should not be displaced until there is a place and plan to handle it.

"We have not been able to review the proposed residential parking program as proposed by staff, but we feel the program should be a concerted effort addressing a total program, not a piecemeal approach that is only a 'band-aid' to a temporary parking solution."

Williams argued for waiting until the parking committee has completed its analysis and surveys before the council makes its final determination about paving and striping the lot.

Go against the grain.

Cut down on salt.

NAACP honors Eastwood for positive image of blacks

CLINT EASTWOOD, Whitney Houston, Eddie Murphy, Jesse Jackson, Arsenio Hall and Bryant Gumbel are just a few of the stars headlining the largest show in the Image Awards history.

The 21st annual NAACP Image Awards, the oldest awards show honoring the positive portrayal of Blacks in films, television and recordings, was taped on Dec. 10 in Los Angeles, and will be televised on Saturday, Jan. 14 at 11:30 p.m. on all NBC stations.

Besides a wealth of celebrities, the show features performances by The Boys, singing their hit Dial my Heart; DJ Jazzy Jeff and the Fresh Prince, they wrote a rap for the Image Awards entitled The Sky IS The Limit; and Deniece Williams and Freddie Jackson in a musical tribute to the late Marvin Gaye.

Eddie Murphy was on hand to accept the "Entertainer of the Year" award. "I haven't been a recipient of many awards," Murphy said at the taping. "It means a lot to me and I'm very proud and happy."

For his use of blacks in positive and non-stereotypical roles in his films, Clint Eastwood received an NAACP Special Award. In a heartfelt address Eastwood said his ambition is "to make the (NAACP Image Awards) obsolete—that it becomes commonplace in the motion picture industry and other industries to never use minorities in a stereotypical fashion, and to branch out.

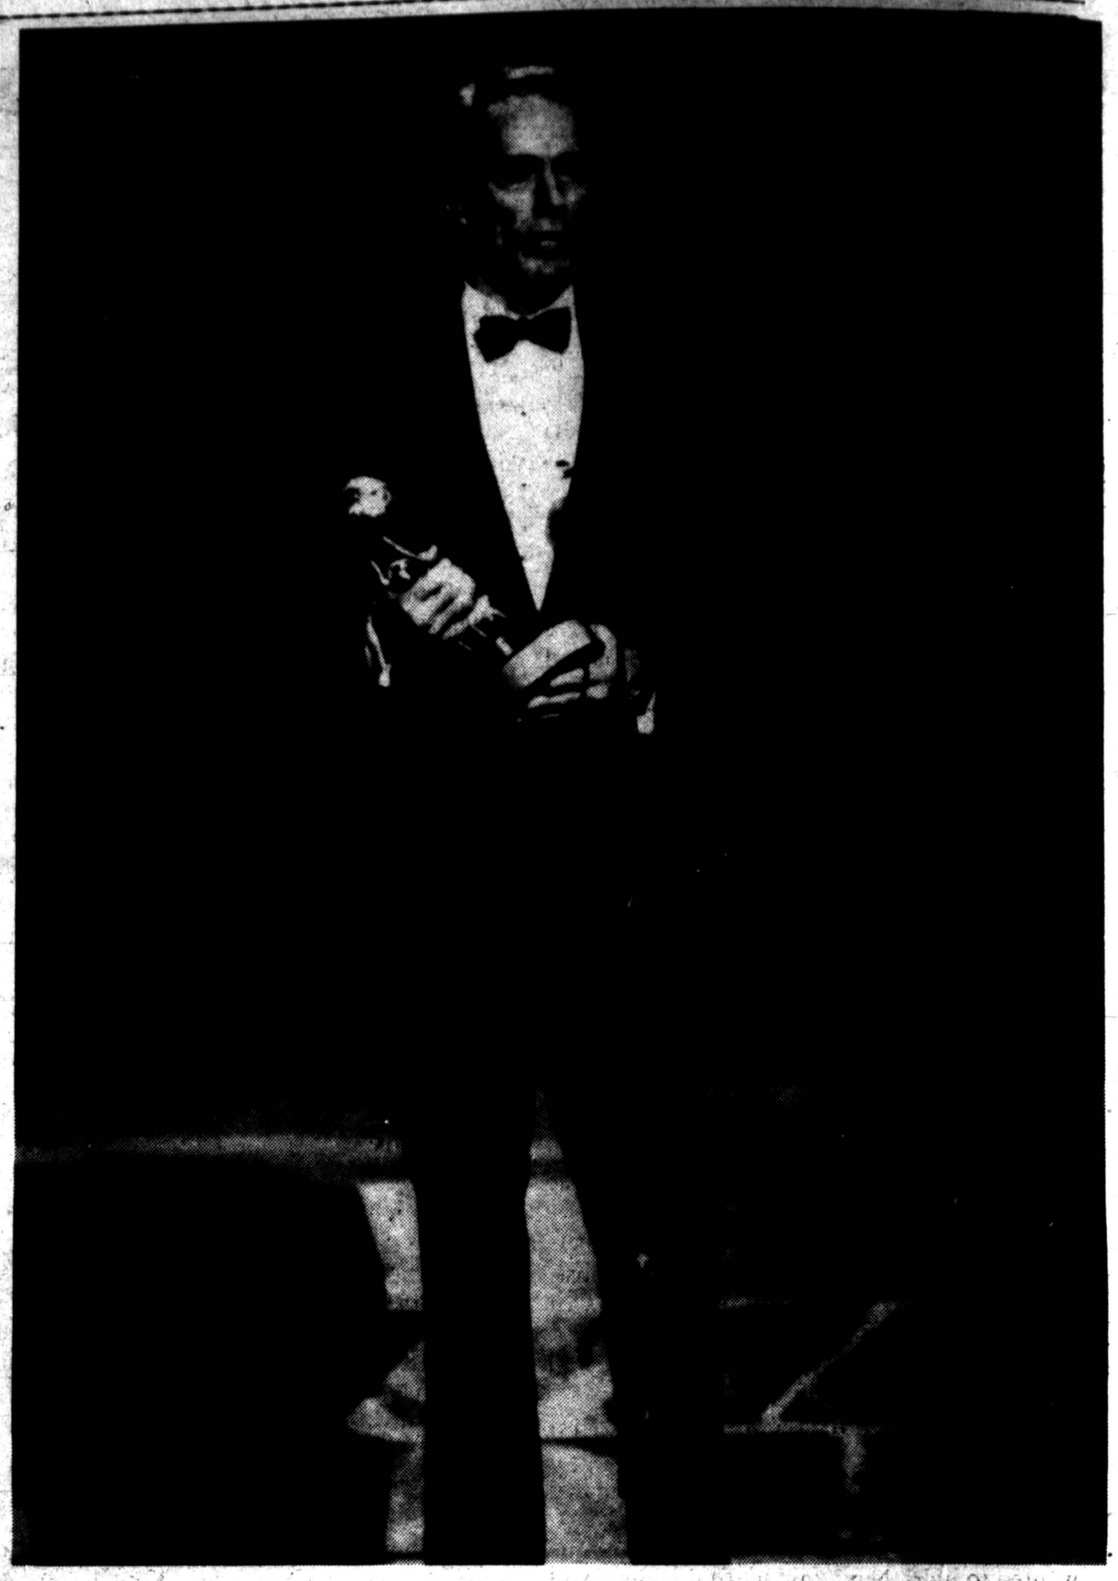
"I've always believed in advancement and opportunity for the individual," Eastwood continued. "It is the job of all caring people to convince the white majority and others that it would advance the country for all of us to have equal opportunities and for the words 'equality' and 'advancement' to take their place next to 'liberty and justice for all.' "

Bryant Gumbel, co-anchor of NBC's "Today" program, received a Special Award for his outstanding contributions to journalism. He thanked the NAACP for its "eternal vigilance" and said he was greatly indebted to those who had gone before him.

Other stars who participate in the event are Arsenio Hall, LA Law stars Jimmy Smits and Blair Underwood, Tim and Daphne Reid of Frank's Place, ex-Miss America Vanessa Williams, Mario Van Peebles, Jasmine Guy and Kadeem Hardison of NBC's A Different World, Clifton Davis, Jester Hairston, and Anna Maria Horsford of Amen, Tina Yothers of Family Ties, rapper Kool Moe Dee, Keith Sweat, Marla Gibbs, Helen Martin, Philip Michael Thomas, singers Martika and Paula Abdul, Spike Lee, Keenen Ivory Wayans, and Gregory Hines, among many others.

An emotional presentation to the Rev. Jesse Jackson by a true rainbow coalition—one black, one white, one Hispanic, one Asian and one American Indian—culminates in a performance by Whitney Houston and Bebe and Cece Winans.

The NAACP Image Awards, in its 21st year, has been a continuous beacon of light supporting and honoring black achievement.



CLINT EASTWOOD accepts an Image Award from the NAACP for his use of blacks in positive and non-stereptypical roles in his films. The show will be broadcast at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 14 on NBC.

City to suspend water distribution

NOW THAT the winter rainy season has finally arrived, the Carmel Forest and Beach Department will suspend its free non-potable water distribution program.

This public service began in July 1987 on a trial basis to see if residents were interested in irrigating their landscapes with spring water supplied by the city. The idea was to keep the village's vegetation healthy and at the same time reduce the demand for potable water, a limited resource, supplied by the local utility company.

At the start of this program, 10 residents signed up, and the department delivered 400 gallons of water each week. In the past year and a half, the number of participants has grown to nearly 100 with 9,000 gallons of water delivered weekly.

The department plans to resume the delivery schedule next spring and continue the free non-potable water to residents program as long as the demand and drought conditions exist.

The After-Christmas Tree Lot

WE STARTED asking in August. You have to start early if you want to build a forest.

We made our list and put it in a green binder. We went to every house on Prescott Drive. We even walked Valley Hills Drive to the end.

"Hi, Mrs. Foster. Could we please have your Christmas tree when you're finished with it?"

"My what?"

"Your Christmas tree."

"But it's only August!"

"I know, but you have to start early if you want to build a forest."

"A what?"

"A forest."

"But where will you put this forest?"

"On the vacant lot next to our house. Right near our radish garden."

"Well sure, Danielle, you may have the tree. But that's a long time from now. Will you remember?"

"We'll remember, all right. We have a list." I opened the binder. "Could you please sign here, and put the day you want your tree picked up here?"

Mrs. Foster looked over the list of streets and house numbers. "My, that's some list. You should have a fine, big forest. Think of it. A forest in Los Angeles!"

She signed next to 4425 Prescott Dr., and wrote Dec. 26th for the pick-up date.

"Thanks a lot. You're our first customer," I said.

"Good luck with your forest!" she called as we crossed the street.

From then on, it was easy to ask. Everyone wanted to help. Next day, word was out. And by the end of the week we had to quit signing people up because the list was so long.

Mr. Graves, our last customer, said his children liked to keep their tree up until the middle of January. I said we wouldn't forget, and marked Jan. 15th for the pick-up date at 2426 Valley Hills Dr.

With two full pages, it looked like we would have about 50 trees. I wondered what sizes they would be, and how they would look together.

"Won't the neighbors be surprised to see a forest spring up one afternoon from that scrub brush on the corner?" said Olivia.

"I can't wait," I said. "I miss our old place in the woods. I never wanted to live in the city, but my mom said there weren't enough bookkeeping jobs in the country. The woods would do for beekeeping, she said, but not for bookkeeping. But I'm glad I moved here or I wouldn't have had you for a friend."

"Me, too," Olivia added. "You're the only friend I have who would bring a forest next door."

I kept the list in the back of my binder when school started in September. At school, only Olivia and John and I knew about it. The forest would be our Christmas surprise.

Halloween came. Then Thanksgiving. At last, we were out for Christmas vacation. Olivia was out of town until Christmas Eve. Of course we were excited about our gifts Christmas Day, but we were thrilled that the first three tree pick ups were Dec. 26th. Such a long wait. Since August! Still, you have to start early if you want to build a forest. Our list seemed almost as important as Santa's.

What luck! John got a new wagon for Christmas. Together we went to Olivia's, then to the first house. It was just five doors up the hill. John rang the bell. A small dog barked inside and we all jumped.

"Who is it?" a cheerful woman's voice called out.

"It's John and Olivia and Danielle," I called back. "We came about your tree."

"You remembered!" said Mrs. Foster as she opened the door. Her poodle danced on the shag rug and sniffed our shoes as we came in. "We just took all the ornaments off. Look! The tree's not much taller than you!"

"It will just fit in John's new wagon," I said.

"I'll help," said Olivia as she gently lifted the wooden stand.

We almost danced with excitement, but we took care not to break any branches as we carried the tree out the door and put it on its side in John's wagon.

We called back to say thanks for saving the tree, but the door had already closed. People are busy at Christmas.

We went just across the street for the second tree. It belonged to Mrs. Finch, a little lady with short, curly gray hair who always wore an apron—indoors and outside. Her tree was just the size you stand on a table. It was easy to carry.

"Here's some ribbon candy," she said with a big smile. "You're good not to forget about the tree. I was counting on you. I have such a small house. Now I have more room."

We thanked her for the candy. I wondered if she had made it herself.

"This is better than trick-or-treat," John said after she closed the door.

"There's our third tree in the window across the street," Olivia pointed out.

"That's way too big to fit on my wagon," said John protectively.

"Let's take the first two trees down to the lot and come back," I offered.

"Put them down here near this clump of brush so the stands won't show," Olivia suggested.

"They look great! They look like they've been planted," John said, clinching his fists in excitement.

It took all three of us to move the last tree of the day, but it stood so proudly on the lot! Our forest had started to spring up, but no one else had noticed. People do get busy at Christmas.

Now we were busy, too. Every day we brought more and more trees until we had only two days left of vacation. We arranged our forest a dozen ways. One day we used it for a school. We brought out books and crayons and paper and rulers. Even chairs and an old chalkboard. Some days we played animal hospital and took turns being the vet. Pet owners would come in for all sorts of cures. We wrapped up legs and carefully brushed every animal that came in. We ran two hoses together from the apartment house and kept a bowl of fresh water for thirsty pets.

Still another day, we brought out a desk and an old typewriter and rubber stamps and made an office in the trees.

"Why couldn't my mom have her office in the trees," I thought. Sometimes we just played hide-and-seek in our forest. In all, we now had 53 trees. It would be 54 when we picked up Mr. Grave's tree.

"No three children ever had more fun on one corner anywhere in the world," said Nell Marshall, who wrote songs. She said she'd write a song about it. "Christmas never is over when children are happy," she laughed.

People from all over the neighborhood stopped by to tell us how nice the lot looked. It wasn't just a vacant lot anymore. Everyone called it The After-Christmas Tree Lot. Nell Marshall made that up for her song title.

It was a dry winter. We played every afternoon and every weekend in our homemade forest. We even watered it. We had visions that it might grow. But cut trees don't grow. Not these anyway. Needles were dropping to the ground now and it was hard to play hide-and-seek without being seen. We arranged the trees in rows and rode bikes zig-zag through them like skiers. Even without many needles, we loved our trees. But we knew they couldn't stay on the lot forever. And day by day they became more like rows of sticks than a forest. We spent less time there now. The cold February wind whistled through what was left of our grove and blew off still more needles. There was talk that when the hot weather returned, the trees would have to go.

One warm day we came home from school together—and our old, scraggly forest was gone. As we climbed the stairs to our apartment, we could hardly look down on the empty lot. It had been so beautiful from above when we first brought the trees. I felt as empty as the vacant lot.

My mom said it was good that the fire department came to get them because it would be fire season in a month or so. Olivia and John were very quiet. We all felt sad even though we didn't play there every day now. My mom said she was sorry. She said we could plant more radishes. She had even bought the seeds. That was fine, but it wasn't a forest.

Olivia and I sat a long time talking about all the things we did in our used tree lot, about playing school and office and pet hospital. We still had so many ideas to try.

"I know what," I said suddenly. "Let's go sign people up for next year!"

"That's a great idea," Olivia agreed. "Let's go get John."

Our sadness had vanished with the trees.

"But it's only March," said Mrs. Foster.

"We know," I said "But you have to start early if you want to build a forest!"

City to start pruning of trees in northeast section

THE CITY of Carmel has contracted with a tree-trimming company to prune dead branches from trees, starting in the northeast section of town.

According to Gary Kelly, city forester, the city has contracted with Best Wood Tree Co. to prune the trees. This is the first year the city has undertaken such a project. Plans are to continue the program annually to improve the health and ensure the safety of the city's forest, Kelly said.

Pruning is scheduled to begin Tuesday, Jan. 17 on Monterey Street. This year's program will include an area bounded by Monterey Street, Santa Rita, Ocean Avenue and the northern city limits and will take approximately one month to complete.

"We ask residents to please understand that the noise of the chainsaws and equipment will be temporary while the crew is working in your vicinity," said Kelly.

Questions and comments should be directed to Kelly at 624-3543.

PACIFIC GROVE-CARMEL LATERAL CONSIDERED BY SUPERVISORS

The proposition to build a Pacific Grove-Carmel direct road through the Del Monte forest, between the city limits of both municipalities, is in a state of suspended animation.

Last Friday night's local mass meeting, called to order by Perry Newberry, presided over by John B. Jordan, attended by about fifty Grovites and fifteen Carmelites, developed plenty of enthusiasm for the project from a Pacific Grove standpoint; very little on the part of Carmel.

ALTERATION COST $5000 FOR EL PASEO BUILDING CITY HALL

A permanent city hall would cost the city of Carmel $37,000, including $5000 for alterations, it was revealed following a meeting between the council and Architect C.J. Ryland Wednesday afternoon over the matter of the proposal to turn El Paseo building into a city hall.

This cost takes into consideration the $3000 allowance made by Byington Ford in submitting the building at a price of $35,000, reduced to $32,000 to permit alterations. Ryland said the figure for remodelling and repairs, according to his plans, would be nearer $5000, not including furnishing.

The plans as drawn include space for a jail cell, complete city offices on the ground floor, council chamber in the northern portion of the building, and city clerk's office behind the chamber and opening on to the patio. The portion now occupied by the dairy would remain available for a store and offices upstairs would also remain as income property under Ryland's plan.

NEW BARS BARRED

Unless a new ordinance is appealed, there will be no new liquor-serving restaurants allowed in Carmel after Feb. 8.

That is the result of a unanimous action by the Carmel City Council Monday evening. The council approved the final reading of a "temperance ordinance" that clamps a lid on new cocktail-serving restaurants here.

The law is an attempt to limit business growth and foster more residential use in the city's commercial districts. It does not affect the sales of beer and wine. It only applies to restaurants that serve mixed drinks.

Paying the rent

THE CARMEL Foundation Jan. 8 made its first annual lease payment of $1 on a giant-sized check to the city of Carmel for the land underneath the senior citizen housing project on the corner of Dolores Street and Fifth Avenue. The check was presented to (left to right), former mayor Clint Eastwood and Mayor Jean Grace by Betty Guilfoil, chairperson of the foundation's housing committee and Janice O'Brien, Carmel Foundation president. Preceding the short ceremony, the foundation conducted a brief "ground-breaking" ceremony to signal the beginning of construction of the senior citizen housing units above the recently completed city-owned underground garage. (Top artist's rendition shows a street-level view from the corner of Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, the drawing above left shows site and first-floor plans, with Dolores at bottom and Fifth to the left.) The housing units will be completed sometime in April or late spring if all goes well. Eastwood said that he was pleased the foundation, a local seniors organization, became involved during his administration and took over the project from the county housing agency. (William C. BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

Bank on it

THREE AREA lending institutions have posted changes as of late. You may find yourself asking, which ones? Wonder no more.

Mary Ann Leffel, former branch manager for Security Pacific Bank in Carmel, has joined Pacific Western Bank as business development officer for the entire peninsula.

Pacific Western Bank is the retail subsidiary of Pacific Western Bancshares, a bank holding company with headquarters in San Jose.

Leffel is active with the Soroptomists, Officers' Wives Club, Military Affairs Committee of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce and the Carmel Business Association.

Over at San Francisco Federal Savings office in Carmel Valley, Merry McVay has signed on as district loan manager.

McVay, who has an extensive background in real estate, recently moved from the San Diego area, where she had been involved with the Soroptimists International.

McVay is currently residing in Carmel with her two daughters, Lisa, 15, and Tiffany, 11.

And finally, Chase Manhattan of California, which specializes in the financing of larger residential and vacation home real estate and luxury autos and boats, has opened an office in Carmel Valley.

Located at 3775 Via Nona Marie, Suite 200, the office is managed by Joann Bray, who has 10 years of experience in commercial and construction lending.

"Chase employs experienced lending officers who can tailor financing plans to fit specific needs," says Bray. "Personal attention, flexible financing, and rapid loan decisions are our hallmarks."

Best of the Best... Best Western, Inc. has awarded the Carmel Mission Inn the 1988 Director's Award, placing them among the best of Best Western.

The award was given the inn for receiving a score of 962 out of a possible 1,000 points on its recent quality assurance inspection.

"We have strived to maintain a clean, up-to-date property that meets the needs and desires of our guests, be they business or leisure," says Lynn Banks, director of marketing for the Carmel Mission Inn. "This type of award is something we are proud of and wish to share with the community."

A change in the weather... Whitney's Cards & Stationery at Seventh and Dolores has reverted back to Gerold Whitney, the building's owner.

Former tenant Kazuhiro Kono apparently was not taking in enough money on his unique selection of cards to make the lease payment, according to Whitney, who took back the business Dec. 19.

Anyway, Whitney, after contemplating commuting between the Sacramento foothills (where he runs an antique store), and Carmel, has decided to put the business up for sale.

"It's just too hard to commute back and forth between two places," he says. "It just doesn't work."

The good news for Carmelites is that Whitney is looking to sell to an owner who will keep the "residential" business intact.

New biz... Matrix Design Group, headquartered in Palo Alto, has opened a second office on Lincoln Street.

MDG specializes in providing professional architectural, interior design and planning services for a variety of client types, including corporate, commercial, institutional and residential.

Increasing project demands have created a need for additional facilities and personnel in response to rapid commercial and residential growth now occuring in Monterey County.

SENIOR LINE

By Bill Schneider

Another catastrophe

Q. IN your column Dec. 8 in the Carmel Pine Cone, a person wrote something about additional income taxes to be paid by seniors because of the Medicare Catastrophic Act. What is this all about? I'd like more information and who my Congressman is for this area. I can't believe the stupid bills passed out of Washington D.C. and the state. It's like they flat don't know or care. Those folks who can afford other health care insurance should be allowed to do so. But insurance companies have no insurance available to you after 65. Let me have more info on the bill.

VM, Monterey

A. IF you are presently covered by Medicare, you should have recently received a pamphlet "Medicare Has Improved" and your new 1989 Medicare Handbook, both of which explain the additional financing for the Catastrophic Coverage Act of 1988. In addition to the extra $4 added to your Part B Medicare Premium, you may owe $22.50 for each $150 of income tax liability for the year 1989 if you are covered by or are eligible for Medicare. A more detailed explanation of the Supplemental Medicare Premium may be obtained at your local Social Security Office or from the Internal Revenue Service. Most of the major insurance companies offer a supplemental or Medi-Gap policy to help pay where Medicare doesn't. Leon Panetta, who represents California's 16th District in the House of Representatives, maintains an office at 380 Alvarado St. in Monterey. (649-3555)

Q. I'M 58, widowed and live alone in my own house. My father died recently and my two brothers and I don't think our 83-year-old mother can live alone much longer because of her physical condition. I have misgivings about mother living with me since I never cared for an ill or elderly person before. I was totally unprepared when my husband died and went through a painful two-year period learning the financial facts of life. Can you give me any advice on preparation?

MB, Carmel Valley

A. MAKE sure that your brothers and other family members are involved. Use the Area Agency on Aging (AAA) and the Alliance on Aging's Information and Referral Service for knowledge of available resources. Get a back-up care giver through the Alliance or the AAA's Linkages Program. Depending on your mother's condition, you and your mother might join a related support group. Know your mother's financial situation. Does she have a will, life insurance, durable power of attorney for health care? I would suggest that you contact the Linkages Program at 1184 Monroe St., Salinas 93906 (757-5908 Salinas; 375-8132 Monterey Peninsula) for a complete analysis of the situation by professionals.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write Senior Line, Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, CA 93906 or call (408) 757-5905 in the Salinas area or 372-7662 from the Monterey Peninsula. Senior Line needs your name, address and phone number but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

QUAIL LODGE CAPTURES ITS 13th MOBIL TRAVEL GUIDE 5-STAR AWARD

Quail Lodge has once again been recognized as one of "the best in the country" with the most respected and prestigious honor in the travel industry, the Mobil Travel Guide 5-Star award.

Only 21 properties, chosen from 21,000 lodging establishments in North America, received the coveted 5-Star award for 1989. An independent rating organization anonymously inspects properties throughout the year using the strictest standards in the lodging industry.

The 5-Star award signifies that an establishment is "one of the best in the country," a property that offers truly exceptional dining and service in the most elegant environment.

"We know the 5-Star rating is the highest praise we can receive," said Edgar H. Haber, president and founder of Quail Lodge. "We're enormously proud to earn this earn this accolade. Our staff works hard to give every customer the best possible service. This honor tells us that our efforts are paying off."

Quail Lodge, a retreat spread among 850 acres of scenic lakes and woodlands, features abundant recreational facilities including a championship golf course, four swimming pools, hot tubs, jogging trails, trout fishing and more. Two on-site restuarants offer superb continental cuisine and spectacular views of the countryside.

"Quail Lodge won the 5-Star entirely on merit," said Allen E. Murray, CEO and chairman of the board at Mobil Corp. "Their dedication to consistency of excellence, impeccable service, superior facilities, superb hospitality and, above all, the tireless pursuit of perfection makes Quail Lodge among the finest establishments in America."

In the Mobil Travel Guide's 32-year history, Quail Lodge remains the only 5-Star award winner between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD OF MONTEREY COUNTY'S ANNUAL MEETING

The Carmel Valley Country Club will be the setting for the 18th annual meeting of Planned Parenthood of Monterey County (PPMC) on Thursday, Jan. 19. The theme of the evening, "Re-affirming the Commitment," is a special tribute to Margaret Sanger, mother of family planning and founder of Planned Parenthood. The public is invited to share the evening with the board and staff while they welcome PPMC's new executive director, Mary Rose Delgadillo; new board members; and the slate of officers for 1989.

The meeting will begin with a social hour at 6 p.m., a special presentation at 6:30 and dinner at 7. Reservations are $30 per person. For further information call Planned Parenthood of Monterey County, 373-1709.

UC BERKELEY PROF TO ADDRESS NEW FORUM

Professor Otto J. M. Smith of the UC Berkeley faculty will speak on "Appropriate Energy Technology" at the next New Forum luncheon Monday, Jan. 16, at Pebble Beach Lodge.

Inventor of solar energy power plants, wind turbines, a variable speed generator and other devices for harnessing energy, Smith will discuss his belief that "federal subsidies distort the true cost of energy."

During his more than 30 years on the University of California faculty, Smith has done research and teaching at universities and institutes in Australia, Brazil, West Germany, Paraguay and Rumania. He has traveled and lectured extensively in the Soviet Union.

In addition to his numerous inventions, he has authored more than 145 scholarly papers on energy and ecomonic and biological systems. He is a member of the International Solar Energy Society and other organizations in engineering, economics and science.

He believes federal subsidies to energy could be reorganized to speed up both conservation and energy savings.

In his New Forum talk, he will discuss ways in which mass transport systems and electric cars can reduce the "greenhouse effect," how solar powerplants can replace traditional gas, oil, coal, and nuclear power, and how energy conservation can be made to work more cheaply.

Reservations for the luncheon, which will begin at noon Jan. 16, can be made by calling 625-9967.

MONTEREY COUNTY FIRST TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF MST BUS PASS PROGRAM

Monterey-Salinas Transit announced that the County of Monterey has become the first employer to take advantage of MST's new Employer Outreach Program. The new program offers discounted bus passes for employees through their employers. By purchasing monthly bus passes in bulk from MST, employers are able to pass along the savings to their employees.

Christmas miracle

IONA LOGIE of Carmel shows off an Easter lily that she had planted in April and had bloomed in late December, surviving even the coldest days of the year. Five buds all came out in December. "Doesn't it prove that the days of miracles are not all gone?" said Logie, who reported later that another Carmel resident also experienced a similar thing with her lilies. (Alan McEwen photo.)

Leading role

Holly Barron, daughter of poet Sally Hapgood of Carmel and a graduate of UC Berkeley, is currently appearing in Arthur Miller's View From the Bridge, Jan. 12 through Feb. 12 at the Alley Theater in Texas. She plays the lead, Beatrice. Barron has appeared in numerous productions over the years, including Off Broadway, at Colorado Shakespeare Festival, Berkeley Repertory Theatre, and the Magic Theatre in San Francisco, of which she is a founding member.

The County of Monterey officially entered the program by purchasing discounted monthly bus passes for the month of January. Al Morris, community relations officer for MST said, "The fast response from county employees and indications that many more will take advantage of the program in February, demonstrate that public transit is a good alternative to the automobile for many commuters."

The Employer Outreach Program is offered as a solution to the increasing traffic and parking problems experienced in many areas of the county.

"We are offering the program to all major employers in Monterey County," said Morris.

Telephone information about the Employer Outreach Program is available by contacting Al Morris at 899-2558 or 424-7696.

GENEALOGICAL SEMINAR SPONSORED BY THE COMMODORE SLOAT CHAPTER, NSDAR

For the serious genealogist, for the dabbler, and for the in between, the Commodore Sloat Chapter, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution is offering its eight annual genealogical seminar on Saturday, Feb. 4 at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Seaside.

Volunteers at the Family History Center there, led by their director Karen Clifford, are assisting Alida Lehman and her committee in bringing to the public a day full of choices in genealogy classes. Guest speaker and honored class instructor will be Jimmy Parker of Salt Lake City whose accreditation in the areas of Canada, New England and Midwestern states will no doubt impress serious students as it has his peers.

The seminar this year is geared to the movement of pioneers westward and in this vein Parker will share his expertise in suggestions for researching Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Kansas.

For those with ancestors not associated with the Midwest, many other classes will be offered by local experts, to bring new tools of research into the realm of consideration. For instance, Tom Muller will offer a computer class for advanced students and will also teach Scottish research as well as beginning German research.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

In addition to the daily phone calls, home visitations, tea parties, and luncheons are also scheduled to "further enhance and improve the quality of our contacts" with those who are shut-ins or at-risk, Dampier said.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

"To fight the good fight"

Carmel Pine Cone
Jan. 7, 1982

St. Timothy was the first Bishop of Ephesus in Asia Minor, now part of Turkey. He was the most beloved and trusted disciple of St. Paul of Tarsus.

When he was a young man, Paul wrote him this advice which could be the motto of Carmel Rotary: "Stop drinking water only and use a little wine for your stomach's sake and your frequent illnesses."

In the same series of letters, he warns Timothy against being a drinker and a brawler and not to be "double tongued and given to much wine."

St. Paul, like most good men, was not a fanatic. He thought that "in. vin media stat virtus." (In the middle way lies virtue.) He exhorted Timothy to be moderate but not stuffy—to pursue the good life with love, patience and mildness.

Oh Lord, help us to follow Paul's advice, to fight the good fight. May we refrain from counting days but make each day count.

Finally, in a Santa Fe, New Mexico paper I read this filler. Little Panchito asked, "Mamacita, do men get to heaven? I have never seen a picture of an angel with a beard."

"Si, Panchito, some men get to heaven but only by a close shave." Amen.

A four-word question by Medicare patients can make a difference in their doctor bills. If the answer to "Do you accept assignment?" is "yes," that means the doctor will not charge more than the fees that Medicare approves. Medicare pays 80 percent of an approved fee and the patient pays the remainder as well as any part of the Medicare deductible that may be due. Doctors who don't accept assignment can charge more than the Medicare rates, and the patient is responsible for the difference. Directories of doctors who accept assignment are available at local Social Security offices.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

The Good, the Bad, the Ugly

YOU DIDN'T really think I'd let 1988 get by without a "Best and Worst" list did you? I know it's late, but let's hope it was worth the wait.

Last year's list, which I had dubbed the "No Name Award," because it didn't have a catchy name like the "Oscars," or the "Emmys," focused on the film world. This time I thought I'd take a shotgun approach and include just about everything, films, music, comedy, etc.

So here it is, The Critic at Large Best and Worst of 1988:

Best Theater: I should just retire this awardee to the Hall of Fame because the Dream Theater is, hands down, the best movie theater in the area. It wins in all categories: comfort, cleanliness, visibility, film selection and quality of its concessions. Take a few points off for the Dream II (upstairs), but it's not all that bad.

Worst Theater: Once again, a tie between the Hill Theatre, that Quonset hut with a screen, and upstairs at the State III Cinemas, which should be condemned, or at least put out of our misery.

Best Video Store: Movie Mart in Pacific Grove comes out on top because of its great selection, everything from offbeat movies to great jazz videos. The Wherehouse wins some points because of its quantity (they must have 50 copies of Beetlejuice alone).

Most Lamentable Demise — Film Division: The sinking of the Monterey Film Festival into a sea of debt, almost $200,000 worth. That certainly kills any chances of another film festival in this area for a while.

Most Lamentable Demise — Rock Division: The break-up of Monterey modern rock band Floating Mission, which was gaining quite a following in the area. But if I know guitarist Tom Ayres, he'll be back soon with something unique and promising.

Best Art Gallery Opening: The opening of Santa Cruz artist Robert Kvenild works at PG's Site 311. The opening featured a performance by retro-rock band, The Thongs and Robert Kvenild's playful ceramic sculptures. Site 311 has consistently showcased the most innovative, cutting edge art and artists to the peninsula art scene, which has been in need of a transfusion.

Best Local Independent Cassette Release: Sure this is a narrow category, but I still like the work Monterey modern rockers Lovers and Strangers did on their first cassette. It's got a clean, streamlined sound, good production values and killer performances on four band originals.

Knee-jerk Reaction Award — Film Division: For chilly response that film director Henry Winkler got when he met with a small group of Carmel residents to discuss his plans to film scenes for a movie in Carmel. Lighten up, eat some bran.

Knee-jerk Reaction Award II: For all those who protested the showing of The Last Temptation of Christ without even seeing the movie first or even bothering to look into and understand what director Martin Scorsese was trying to say.

Best and Worst Comedy Show of the Year: KWAV's Comedy Laff-Off had some of the best comedians to be seen and heard on the peninsula in the past year...and the worst. The finals, however, made up for some of the shortcomings of the preliminiaries, with eventual winner Mickey Joseph and runner-up Stephen B. shining examples.

Most Overblown Criticism — Rock Division: The trashing the KMBY Music Annex Battle of the Bands got from some quarters. The competition, as most competitions tend to be, wasn't perfect and some of the bands and judges left a lot to be desired, but overall the event was fun, fairly well organized and a boon to the live rock scene on the peninsula.

Best Club of the Year: Tie between the Monterey Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club for consistently bringing in challenging, topnotch jazz, blues and R&B, and The Club of Monterey and owner Brooke Lewis for instituting a Dollar Night showcasing local rock bands and a Blues Night to showcase local blues and R&B musicians.

Best New Restaurant of the Year: Silver Jones in the Barnyard. With Michael Jones' expertise in the kitchen and Jack Silver's smooth and friendly demeanor in the dining room, the place had to catch on, and it has. Food's great, atmosphere is comfortable and unrushed, and prices are reasonable, especially the wine list. Bon appetit!

What Have You Done For Us Lately? Award: To Monterey Life magazine for their cavalier treatment of local writers and photographers. The mag's in dire need of a good public relations consultant...and lawyer, it seems.

Smoke Gets in Your Eyes Award: How did the Monterey Film Festival ever get so deep in debt — to the tune of $200,000 — without anyone knowing about it or taking responsibility for it?

Most Hideous Trend in Pop Music Award: Taking perfectly good old hits and re-recording them with gussied-up and discofied arrangements, or turning them into incongruous medleys, such as the recent "hit" by Will to Power that joined Baby, I Love Your Way and Free Bird into a gloppy, sickening mess. And what was wrong with Otis Redding's version of Dock of the Bay in the first place?

During 1989, The SPCA of Monterey County, A Humane Society, will continue to attempt to significantly decrease the pet over-population problem in the county. It is the policy of The SPCA that every dog and cat adopted from us must be spayed or neutered, before leaving the shelter. The only exception is a puppy or a kitten too young to be spayed or neutered; in that case, the surgery must still be paid for at the time of adoption, and proof of surgery must be filed with The SPCA when the animal reaches the age of 6 months. The heartbreaking fact that every resident of Monterey County needs to contemplate is that thousands of loveable and beautiful animals are euthanized every year because there are more domestic animals than good homes for them. In addition, spaying greatly reduces the risk of mammary tumors for female cats and dogs, and neutering reduces the chance that your male dog will dart across the street or roam in search of a female.

The SPCA of Monterey County, A Humane Society, The Carmel Pine and Cone and The Pacific Grove Monarch as well as the merchants on this page, present this feature for your awareness.

Franciscan String Quartet performs at Sunset Theater

THE FRANCISCAN String Quartet will perform under the auspices of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula at 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 14. The concert will take place in Sunset Theater, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel.

The Quartet, with Wendy Sharp, violin; Julie Kim Ahn, violin; Marcia Cassidy, viola, and Margery Hwang, cello, will perform Beethoven's "String Quartet in A Major," Op. 18, No. 5; Rochberg's "String Quartet No. 5;" and "Schumann's String Quartet in A Major," Op. 41, No. 3.

The Franciscan String Quartet was founded in 1982 at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music. After winning the Carmel Chamber Music Competition and the hearts of local music lovers, it went on to win first prize in the 1986 Banff International String Quartet Competition as well as taking top honors in the Fischoff National Chamber Music Competition and the Shoreline Alliance for the Arts Competition.

In 1987 the quartet won the Press and City of Evian Prizes at the Evian International Competition. The ensemble was selected by the Tokyo String Quartet to serve as Wardwell Fellows at Yale University from 1985 to 1987, and later was chosen from a slate of more than 80 quartets to become the Quartet-in-Residence at Dartmouth College.

Violinist Wendy Sharp graduated Summa Cum Laude from Yale University with Distinction in Music. She served as concertmaster of the San Francisco Concert Orchestra and Yale Symphony and for several summers was a member of the San Francisco Opera Orchestra. Sharp is the winner of many awards and has participated in the Aspen, Tanglewood, Chamber Music West, Norfolk, and Music Academy of the West festivals.

Violinist Julie Kim Ahn began her studies in Seoul, Korea. After arriving in the United States in 1973, she continued at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music where she graduated and also was the recipient of the Ernest Bloch Memorial and Sequoia Trust Scholarships. Kim has appeared as soloist with a number of orchestras including in 1986, with the Seoul Philharmonic Orchestra and has participated in the Chamber Music West, Aspen and Norfolk music festivals.

Violist Marcia Cassidy graduated from the University of Texas at Austin, pursued graduate studies at the New England Conservatory of Music and the University of New Mexico, receiving her master's degree from the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Symphony premieres new composition by Naoumoff

AS A HIGHLIGHT to the Monterey County Symphony's "Season of Premieres," the rare opportunity of hearing a composer as a performer of his own composition will take place Sunday through Tuesday, Jan. 15, 16 and 17. Pianist Emile Naoumoff will join Maestro Clark Suttle and the Monterey County Symphony for the world premiere performances of his "Piano Concerto No. 2."

PIANIST EMILE Naoumoff will perform his "Second Piano Concerto" with the Monterey County Symphony on Jan. 15, 16, 17, and will also give a solo benefit recital in the Sunset Cultural Center Sunday, Jan. 22 at 8 p.m. For ticket information, call 624-8511.

Naoumoff's career as a pianist has overshadowed his gifts as a composer in recent years—a situation which Maestro Suttle has planned to remedy with these concerts.

Emile Naoumoff is a prodigy as both a pianist and a composer, having begun his piano playing at the age of 5 and composing music at the age of 6. He studied both skills under the renowned Nadia Boulanger at the American Conservatory at Fontainebleau for eight years until her death in 1979.

Maestro Suttle and the orchestra will round out the program with Tchaikovsky's "Suite No. 4 in G Major, Mozartiana" and conclude the concerts with the famous "Symphony No. 5" by Beethoven.

About the Concerto, the Symphony's program note annotator Louise Cuyler, has written the following after studying the score:

"Tonight's concert is a landmark event in the history of the Monterey County Symphony. For the first time a new piano concerto is given its premiere performance in our concert series, with the composer himself as the solo artist. The 20th century has witnessed the near-disappearance of the virtuoso-composer; not since Rachmanioff has a concertizing pianist produced serious works designed to demonstrate technical prowess at the keyboard but at the same time make the piano sound grandiose. Emile Naoumoff appears to be reviving the species, for his 'Second Concerto' requires a heroic technique and is planned to project all the best qualities of the keyboard instrument."

The concert will be presented at King Hall in Monterey on Jan. 15, Sunset Theater in Carmel on Jan. 16, and Sherwood Hall in Salinas in Jan. 17.

ARTS & LEISURE

Ensemble struggles to stage operas locally

By ANNE PAPINEAU

SEEKING TO remedy the dearth of opera performances on the Monterey Peninsula is a company of players long on enthusiasm but short of cash.

Not even a year old, the Monterey Opera Association Inc. has already staged four short operas in such places as Carmel's Cherry Hall and Monterey's Custom House Plaza. And if opera buffs exhibit enough enthusiasm for their efforts, they hope to stage ambitious, fully mounted shows. But public support must be won first.

Gioacchino Rossini's The Marriage Contract is the next effort of the Monterey Opera Association. Written when the composer was 18 years old, The Marriage Contract is a light-hearted tale of greed vs. young love. Something of a drawing room drama, it will be staged in the appropriate environs of La Mirada, the historic estate located on property adjacent to Monterey Peninsula College. Performance dates are Friday through Sunday, Jan. 13-15.

Kelley Alexander, who with Juliet Williams founded the Monterey Opera Association in February 1988, will direct The Marriage Contract. He will also sing the role of Slook.

"We have a lot of musical theater groups and several major choral groups on the peninsula, but except for Hidden Valley — almost no opera," Alexander observed. Alexander is in fact a veteran of many local musical theater productions, from the Forest to the Wharf theaters. Before moving to the peninsula, he served as administrator of the Charlotte Opera in North Carolina for five years. There he developed an in-school opera program and free opera-in-the-park series.

"The Monterey Opera Association is not a really cohesive group yet," noted Alexander. The group does boast a 14-member board, however, and has registered as a non-profit organization.

"I've gotten on a bus with a group of people and gone to San Francisco to see opera, so I know people around here like the medium. And there are people who want to go to the San Francisco Opera and if it is anything less, they can't stand it."

But Alexander and his group hope to tap the enthusiasm of opera fans and fill the seats at their "vest-pocket" presentations.

"The private sector must support it because grants are getting tighter and tighter," he added.

"WE HAVE almost no money. When we do these things, a handful of people have chipped in for stationery and stamps," Alexander pointed out.

For The Marriage Contract, rehearsals began in October. Casts so far have been composed of, "Pretty much people I know — but anyone is welcome. It's word-of-mouth with singers. We're performing in small spaces right now. Eventually we'd like to get the best singers we can, people who can project in a large hall. This company is a true reflection of the community."

In addition to Alexander, the cast of The Marriage Contract includes Lael Carlson, who has sung with the San Francisco Opera Chorus, as Fanny; Harrison Shields as Mill; Jim Sutty as Edward; Carmen Martin as Clarina, and Brian Vaughn as Norton.

Barney Hulse serves as music director and Sandy Williams is the stage manager.

The company's productions also provide a challenge for accompanists, who must perform on piano a reduction of an entire orchestral score.

Despite his background as a performer and opera administrator, Alexander has already learned some lessons during the first year of the Monterey Opera Association. Last summer during the annual Monterey Bay TheatreFest staged by GroveMont Theater, the opera company staged Rita — Or the Battered Husband in Monterey's Custom House Plaza.

"TheatreFest wants me to do something again — but I learned last summer," Alexander noted. "I can't use props out there because of the wind. I'll also have to get grants, basically just to pay the singers a little something. It was difficult to move those props on and off the stage.

"There are lots of operas I'd like to do, but it's hard to find operas with only five or six people in them," he added.

The Marriage Contract will be the 1989 season opener for the Monterey Opera Association. Other productions are now in rehearsal.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

News from Radioland

BEFORE HE became Joe Friday on television, Jack Webb played a radio private eye named Pat Novak. The show originated live from San Francisco. We children of that medium—it was a close and trusted friend rather than an amoral huckster like Geraldo—remember such facts.

Today, then—news from Radioland. The 50,000-watt KSUR-FM (combo format of jazz and European classical music) reports more delay in opening up shop locally. New target date: March first.

Spokeswoman D'Ann Doyle said last September that the station should be able to get started in early January (right about now). Tower construction problems previously had blocked an autumntime '88 kick-off. This week she offered: "Some equipment that we ordered arrived damaged and we had to send it back. Presently we have a full-time engineer on the site. Furniture for the offices in Monterey Business Park has been ordered on the basis of the (3/1) date I gave you."

KSUR's a project of Saul Levine, who has jazz station KKGO in Los Angeles. Assistant D'Ann said his vision remains the same: a national network of jazz radio outlets. In fact, she added, the FCC has granted him a building permit for a third facility "in the mountains of Southern California."

When he told your present correspondent last June about KSUR's creation, Saul Levine described its coverage area this way: "From Santa Cruz to past San Ardo. It will be the most powerful FM station on the Central Coast."

Honcho Gil Wisdom of KRML Jazz Radio said: "We don't feel that competition's bad. The new station's arrival will simply widen the spectrum of jazz broadcasting."

Gil said he understands that KSUR will feature "a feed line from the KKGO studios" and "a pretty strict playlist."

Then: "At KRML we do a different kind of thing. If one of our broadcasters wants to play off of the local weather or help celebrate someone's birthday, that's what happens. We can address local occasions in a spontaneous manner."

THE 21st annual NAACP Image Awards will be broadcast Saturday night (1/14). So says NBC-TV. When the Los Angeles ceremonies were held last month, Clint Eastwood was honored for using black performers in positive and non-stereotypical roles.

Carmel's former mayor was handed a special citation by Forest Whitaker, who played Charles Parker in the Bird bio. Eastwood then said he looked forward to the day when such racial awards would be obsolete.

That comment reveals something about Clint Eastwood the person. It has been my pleasure to work as a community organizer—Chicago, Oregon, Oakland—around the related issues of emergency housing and neighborhood food distribution. His words reflect a principle put out there by the great Saul Alinsky: praise-seekers need not apply; one's own obsolescence must be the constant goal.

Meanwhile, industry hawkeyes report that Warner Brothers will keep Bird in at least limited circulation. The move indicates a belief that Oscar nominations and attention from critics (via those inevitable Best-Of-1988 lists) could benefit box office totals.

Film writer Kevin Thomas of the Los Angeles Times did name Clint's directorial effort among 10 "favorite films" from last year. The comment: "...Charlie Parker (was) played with such truth and pain by Forest Whitaker...(This title) brings a rare distinction to the film biography. No less impressive is Diane Venora as the smart, distinctive and free-spirited Chan Parker."

From the annual wrap of San Francisco critic Edward Guthmann: "...Clint Eastwood came into his own as a director with his elegant and perceptive Bird...'

European standards still outstrip this nation's vis-a-vis a steady sense of jazz people as serious artists. It was at Cannes that Forest pulled down best actor honors. My guess: Bird Parker's reality and the Whitaker characterization will prove too gritty for Oscar voters. He may well get the nomination he deserves, but look for a safer winner—Tom Hanks, say, or Dustin Hoffman.

Venora's intense and jewel-bright turn feels like the film's best shot at proper recognition from the complicated Oscar process. She'll probably end up in the supporting actress category.

Clint Eastwood's direction? Sadly, the industry will need some years to absorb the masterful and literary ways he packed a whole life into bebop's Eternal Now. Happily, he has won the freedom to pursue his creative lights wherever they may lead. (Novelist Lawrence Durrell developed a brilliant design for exposing event and memory as layered and perpetually interdependent. The Alexandria Quartet. I imagine that he would give one word to the Bird flick's depiction of time—yes.)

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

If not for artists

DURING THE past year there has been more activity in drawing, painting and sculpture here on the peninsula than ever before. All of the art organizations have been involved. This includes the Monterey Peninsula Foundation of Art, the Central Coast Art Association, The Carmel Galleries Association, the Pacific Grove Art Center, the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, and, of course, the oldest clan of all, the Carmel Art Association.

There has been a number of good exhibits, solo and group. I think of Eleen Auvil's sculpture at the Carmel Art Association, and of Alexander Weygers' very broad retrospective at the Pacific Grove Art Center. He is that rare combination of artist and engineer.

By the time this review is published, the large showing of the members of the Monterey Foundation of Art will have been taken down from the walls of the Pacific Grove Art Center. In this organization there is no judging for membership, or for hanging in exhibitions. This is very refreshing, but obviously there will come a time when limits are necessary.

This recent exhibit was in honor of Victor DiGesu who has passed from our midst. Victor was a great man for shapes and color. The paintings in oil that were hung showed this very strongly. As he taught a class, there are a number of works resulting from this activity. They were mounted together in what you might call an assemblage.

"Gold Table and Mirror" is an oil by Janet De La Roche who was Victor's wife. Both of them had an acute knowledge of the synchronization of color. He had a theory about harmonies related to those in music. Her oil does not shout, but the way the areas relate makes this a whole painting. There are not cast shadows used in the work of either one.

When I think of the painting of either Victor or Janet, I also become disgusted with the world of merchandising. They are not, and never were a part of that scene. I think the great museums and galleries should have agents who go out "into the field" and look for original imagery. Nowadays the artist, unless he has an agent, has to struggle to get galleries to even look at his work. After all, if it was not for the artist they would not be in business.

Another point is the matter of competitive shows. Usually the artist has to pay an entry fee per painting or sculpture. As far as most institutions are concerned, they don't have the money to give out for prizes so the artists pay for a chance to be hung, and the chances are they will be rejected, but the winners will get part of their entrance money.

Getting back to the showing of the work of members of the Monterey Peninsula Foundation of Art, may I mention Carl Bowman's oil, "Short and Cypress Streets." He uses warm and cool color very effectively. He has a fine, plastic consideration of space. An artist who is very concerned with color is Jay Hannah. He knows that certain associations can change as you move back from the painting. These experimental works are made up of squares of reacting color.

Virginia Conroy was well represented in this exhibit by "Schulte Park Interior," and a play on the imagery of Albert Pinkham Ryder. I also enjoyed David Amland's "Titian Slumber" in mixed media. Mary Burr showed a fine, juicy handling of oil in "Big Sur Landscape" with subtle warms and cools. There was a group that went out to paint under Victor DiGesu's tutelage once a week, and Belinda Vidor did a fine, crisp oil entitled "Saturday Morning" on one of those outings.

THE CURRENT EXHIBIT at the Carmel Art Association opened on Jan. 7 and will be on the walls through Feb. 10. Howard Bradford has a one-man show which consists entirely of oils of the sea. He has caught the random movement of the water as waves shatter on rock. This is splendid for abstraction.

Among my favorite antipathies are waves painted so that light seems to shine through them as they crest. I can remember oils done of the sea with metallic glitter glued on top of the breaking wave.

Howard uses some warm color to enliven his ocean as in "Sea and Rocks, No. 7," and in "Suspended Wave," also in "Sea and Rocks No. 3." "Distant Rocks" is a more abstract painting.

The feeling which I get from looking at these seascapes is rather like viewing the ocean from the deck of a heaving boat.

SITE 311 in Pacific Grove on Forest Avenue continues to offer for viewing the works of contemporary artists who do not live in this area. Beginning on Jan. 6, and in place through March 4, will be an installation by Alexis Milton Moore entitled "Visible Terrain." This is the first time that I have seen, at least on the peninsula, an exhibit which is one whole piece, so as to speak. It consists of a text, books, two photographs, mixed media works on paper, and several oils on wood panels.

The text covers the end wall in the gallery, and is a powerful graphic piece by itself. It establishes a basis for the Visible Terrain. There are three pieces in which the artist has drawn on paper. I liked "Hold Pattern, 1988." The oils on wood panels are completely different, one from the other. The books are spread open, and a tube of neon illuminates the pages. This presentation is conceptual. You are invited to participate. In other words you have to make the jumps that makes the whole idea become clear.

OVER AT BITTERSWEET, which is on Forest across from the Grove Market in Pacific Grove, Jay Chapman is showing several oils and they will be on view through Feb. 3. He has painted all manner of things on these canvases so that they become rather kaleidoscopic. One can view this painting either close up, or far away.

Jay has a sense of humor, all right. Down in the corner of one canvas is a can opener. He has painted below it the words, "Irish Army Knife."

Art Guild pays tribute to wildlife

Artists dedicated to wildlife preservation on the Central California Coast will celebrate the third annual "Whale of an Art Show" at the American Tin Cannery Mall, 125 Ocean View Blvd., Pacific Grove. Show hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 14-15.

This annual event coincides with the peak of the whale migration along the Monterey Bay and will feature work by Carmel wildlife painter Jack Wall, whose bird renderings are part of the display at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. Paul Warner, whose music and poetry is inspired by the actual sounds of whales, will autograph his latest book and have tapes of his music for visitors to enjoy.

The exhibit and sale will also feature wood turning, stained glass, handmade paper art and jewelry, ceramics, country animals and photography. Shell mirrors and other sea craft will be displayed by Betty Hollingsworth of Monterey.

The show is free and open to the public.

For more information, call the Carmel Art Guild at 625-0931.

ON STAGE

Village Wooing; The Man of Destiny

Both long-time and new members of the Staff Players Repertory Company will illuminate the Indoor Forest Theatre stage with two one-act plays by George Bernard Shaw, Village Wooing and The Man of Destiny.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs both works, which will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays until Feb. 18. There will also be Sunday matinees at 2:30 p.m. on Jan. 22 and 29, and Feb. 5 and 12. The Forest Theatre is located at Santa Rita and Mountain View in Carmel.

Village Wooing will feature Norman Stottmeister and Gail Higgenbotham as the quintessential and chauvian male and female. The Man of Destiny will feature Mark Shuler as Napoleon, Carey Crockett as his lieutenant, Marlie Avant as "the strange lady" and Ellis Albee as Guiseppe.

Tickets are $9 general and $7 for students, senior citizens and the military. For further information, call the theater at 624-1531.

Clarence Darrow

Clarence Darrow, a one-person play by David W. Rintels, will open Wednesday, Jan. 18 at Cherry Hall in Carmel. The play is presented by the Monterey Peninsula College Drama Department and the Cherry Foundation.

Jim Jensen will portray the famous attorney reminiscing about his long career. Touching on many of his famous trials, including the significant "Monkey" trial and the sensational Loeb-Leopold trial, Darrow reviews much of America's legal history with salty humor, courtroom gusto and human relish.

Darrow's private life and many contemporary events, including labor conditions, are woven into this story of a man who accepted unpopular cases and defended unpopular causes. Rintels' play is based on Clarence Darrow for the Defense by Irving Stone.

Nick Zanides will direct the production which will have its preview showing at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 18. Performances will continue Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. through Feb. 4. Matinee performances are scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturdays, Jan. 21, 28 and Feb. 4. Reservations should be made by calling 624-7491 or the Center Stage theater box office at 649-5561.

Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Judevine, A Vermont Anthology

A revised version of David Budbill's Judevine, A Vermont Anthology, will bow in the Studio Theatre of The Western Stage. Budbill has added new segments to the play since its 1987 West Coast premiere by The Western Stage.

Two Shavian plays

NORMAN STOTTMEISTER is the writer and Gail Higgenbotham portrays the travelling young lady in Village Wooing. This short play and The Man of Destiny, also by George Bernard Shaw, will be staged at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel. The double bill opens Thursday, Jan. 12. For ticket information, call 624-1531.

Tom Humphrey continues as director of this poetic, hard spoken play that uncovers those human emotions Vermonters (or anyone else for that matter), seldom voice.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Saturdays, Jan. 14 and 21; and 7 p.m. Sundays, Jan. 15 and 22. The theater is located at Hartnell College, 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas.

Tickets are $10 Saturdays and $8.50 on Sundays. For reservations, call 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 5:30 p.m. Sunday in the New Wharf Theatre, located on Old Fisherman's Wharf in Monterey. Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for children. For reservations, call 625-9307.

Olio Revue
